Image takes another bite

IMAGE shows no sign of slowing up its expansion programme. While many comics publishers are consolidating by cutting titles and concentrating on commercially proven concepts, Image's roster of limited series and ongoing titles grows apace.

Series planned for January-shipping include the following, from Rob Liefeld's Extreme Studios:

● Casual Heroes is the second title from Michael Davis's Motown Machineworks imprint. The five-issue $2.25 series is by Kevin McCarthy and John Strangeland.

Casual Heroes is the story of a group of twentysomethings who take to posing as superheroes for want of anything better to do.

● Black Anvil, by veteran Len Wein and Frank (Superman: At Earth's End) Gomez, features the alien Strykeforce member in his own $2.50 three-issue series.

● Extreme Destroyer Prologue is written by Rob Liefeld and Eric Stephenson with art from Liefeld, Mike Deodato and Stephen Platt.

The prologue to January's big Extreme crossover opens with the revelation that Glory shares a secret with the New Men. It features the introduction of Shepherd, saviour or destroyer of the Extreme sub-universe.

● Extreme Destroyer Epilogue, by the same creative team as Extreme Destroyer Prologue, revolves around the questions of man's survival after the cataclysm and of the New Men's status — if they will remain the same or be transformed into a radically different kind of fighting team.

● New Force by Liefeld, Eric Stephenson and Todd Nauck answers those questions, as The New Men is replaced by New Force.

Above: Another new look for Rob Liefeld's Extreme Universe. Beginning in January, Extreme Destroyer is a multi-part crossover encompassing new and existing Image titles which will eventually lead to a changed status quo for the Extreme Universe imprint.

Artwork by Extreme Studios

The team undergoes major changes and new members are introduced. (This series replaces the poor-selling New Men.)

● New Man 1, also written by Liefeld and Stephenson, with art by Fabio (Wolverine) Laguna, introduces Liefeld's newest character, the New Man, whose origins lie in contemporary reality but whose life has been spent in the future. Here, the New Man features as Earth's saviour.

● Knightstrike, written by Liefeld and Robert Napton with art by Karl Altstaetter, revives and reforms the fabled paramilitary unit for the Extreme Destroyer crossover. This title should not be confused with Image's mini-series Operation Knightstrike, from earlier in 1995.

The big launch from Jim Lee's

Wildstorm Productions is Spawn/WildC.A.T.s, a team-up of Image's two most successful concepts. The high-rolling encounter is told over a four-issue series written by Alan Moore, with artwork by Scott Clark.

The $2.50 title's storyline is set in two time-strands. In 1995, Grifter and Zealot of the WildC.A.T.s confront and fights Todd McFarlane's Spawn. In 2015, a former hero has conquered the US. The link between the time periods is revealed, and Spawn set up as the potential new world ruler.

Alan Moore is WildC.A.T.s' current writer, and said to be working with McFarlane on several new Spawn projects. His current series will tie in with both Lee and McFarlane titles' continuity.

New readers: begin here

Comics International is a monthly industry newspaper devoted to the comics medium. As such, it provides details of forthcoming UK and US comics and related items, together with reviews and commentary on current titles.

Certain products mentioned are not available through regular news agent outlets, but only from the 'direct sale' comics specialist retailers and mail order companies. Details of specialist outlets are advertised throughout the magazine, and a listing of the major specialists in Britain is given in our Retail Index and Mail Order Index sections.

Shipping dates mentioned for North American titles are the dates copies leave their printers to be air-freighted to distributors for direct sale outlets approximately one week later. These dates and titles do not relate to on-sale dates or titles for news agent copies.

The Marvel and DC titles on news trade distribution are on sale in the UK approximately two to three months after the air-freighted copies can be bought through specialist shops and mail order companies dealing with 'advance imports'. Because of the additional shipping costs incurred, these advance copies are sold at a higher price than the UK cover price.

American dollar prices are listed for US titles with most UK comic shops converting at the rate of 85p = $1.

Most reputable mail order dealers bear a CoBRA seal on their advertisements. For full details concerning advertisers displaying this Mail Order Protection seal, see page 114.

Above: Darryl Banks's promotional visual for Green Lantern vs Silver Surfer, a prelude to the Marvel vs DC/DC vs Marvel four-issue series shipping in December and January. Green Lantern vs Silver Surfer is a 48-page prestige-format title, retailing for $4.95 and shipping at the end of November.

Generation X: the TV movie

GENERATION X is the first live-action television feature based on a Marvel mutant comic. Work on the production started during September in Vancouver, British Columbia. Generation X is scheduled for transmission in Fox's Tuesday Night Movie strand.

The two-hour drama will feature well-known characters from the comic. The film stars Matt (Max Headroom) Frewer as the psychopathic Generation X villain, Russell Tresh.

Finola Hughes stars as Emma Frost, the White Queen; Jeremy Ratchford as Sean "Banshee" Cassidy; Augustin Rodriguez as Angelo "Skin" Espinosa; Bumper Robinson as Mondo and former model Amarilis stars as Monet "M" St Croix.

New team members appearing in the TV adaptation are Suzanne Davis as Arlee "Buff" Hicks, an insecure girl with out-of-control musculature and Randall Slavin as Kurt "Refrax" Pastorius, a boy who can see through solid objects and melt glass with optic rays.

The story of the Generation X film follows Frost and Cassidy's attempts to forge a heroic future while a corporate maniac, Russell Tresh, tries to manipulate society through mind control.

Ultimately the team of mutants battles Tresh in a dreamscape to save the world.

Generation X is an MT2 Services Production in association with Marvel Films. The screenplay is written by Eric Blakeney, directed by Jack Sholder and produced by David Roessell. Executive producers are Bruce Sallan, Eric Blakeney, Avi Arad and Stan Lee.

Due to an exclusivity deal between Fox and sister broadcaster BSkyB, the film could be seen in Britain (by those with dishes) as early as spring 1996.

Sandman: Chasing a dream

THE Sandman, the critically-acclaimed series written by Neil Gaiman, concludes its 75-issue seven-year run in January.

Gaiman, with artist Charles Vess, ties up the storyline of this title which has, over the past four years, become the flagship comic for DC's Vertigo imprint.

The Tempest, the final story, relates how Morpheus collects the last part of the debt owed to him by William Shakespeare.

Dramatic interludes in the script focus on a visit to a mysterious island, the appearance of monsters, sprites, gods, maidens, and apparitions, and discussions on the English weather.

The Sandman 75 is an extra-sized, $3.95 48-page issue with a gatefold poster by Gaiman's long-time collaborator on the series, Dave McKean (who has produced every cover for the 75 issues). The final edition also features two "farewell" text-pages by Gaiman.

Gaiman said of the impending cancellation of the title, "Writing the last episode of The Sandman is both a very joyous and sad thing for me. I said when I began that The Sandman would end if I ran out of things to say, or if I received unwarranted interference from DC, or when the story ended. With The Tempest, the story that began in The Sandman #1 is finally done."

Despite much speculation that the series — by far Vertigo's best-selling book — would be reprinted, there are reportedly no plans to revive it using the work of other writers. The proposed series The Dreaming is scheduled to debut in 1996, The Endless is still in development and the follow-up to the award-winning Death: The High Cost of Living mini-series will be solicited by DC Comics in February 1996.

Death: The Time of Your Life, reunites Gaiman with Chris Bachalo, the artist of the first Death mini-series.

The Sandman: The Kindly Ones is a $34.95 352-page hardback collecting the 13-part series, which culminated in the death of Morpheus, The Sandman.

Batman family battles killer virus

DC IS building momentum towards Detective Comics 700 with a new 11-part Batman crossover entitled Contagion, which unites the Batman family for a crisis of epidemic proportions.

Covert members of the order of St Dumas — the ancient society which was responsible for the creation of Azrael — have stolen a potentially genocidal biological weapon. To test the lethal virus, the crazed cult-members then decide to try it out on the unsuspecting inhabitants of a Greenland village.

On contact with human tissue, the lethal virus begins a relentless assault on the host body, causing an agonising constriction of muscle tissue, overall dehydration and bone collapse.

Within 48 hours of the release of the virus, all but three people in the village are dead.

Unknown to the other rogue members of the order of St Dumas, one of their people inadvertently takes the viral infection back to Gotham and plunges the city into a frenzy of panic and death.

Batman, aided by Robin, Nightwing, Azrael, Huntress, Catwoman and Poison Ivy, begins a frantic search for the survivors of the Greenland slaughter — and a cure — in time to prevent Gotham City being razed to the earth.

Contagion begins in the $1.95, January 16-shipping Shadow of the Bat 48, by Alan Grant, Vince Giarrano and Ray McCarthy. It continues in the following titles:

Shipping January 23

● Detective Comics 695 by Chuck Dixon, Tommy Lee Edwards and Scott Hanna

● Robin 27 by Dixon, Mike Wieringo and Stan Woch

Shipping January 30

● Catwoman 31 by Dixon, Jim Balent and Bob Smith

● Azrael 15 by Denis O'Neil, Barry Kitson and James Pascoe

Shipping February 6

● Batman 529 by Doug Moench, Kelley Jones and John Beatty

● Batman: Shadow of the Bat 49 by Alan Grant, Vince Giarrano and Ray McCarthy

Shipping February 13

● Detective Comics 696 by Chuck Dixon, Graham Nolan and Ray McCarthy

● Batman Chronicles 4 ties in with the story and features three different aspects of the Contagion crossover

● Catwoman 32 by Dixon, Jim Balent and Bob Smith

Shipping February 20

● Azrael 16 by O'Neil, Kitson and Pascoe

● The crossover concludes in Robin 28, by Chuck Dixon, Mike Wieringo and Stan Woch

The aftermath of the Contagion series will launch the Batman towards the 700th anniversary issue of Detective Comics and the beginning of a new major story-arc in the family titles.

IN BRIEF

New Cat comics

MIKE GRELL'S Maggie the Cat is a $2.50 series by the eponymous creator and Brian Snoddy.

The series reintroduces Grell's bad-girl jewel-thief (from Shaman's Tears) in a team-up with a British government agent to save the world. Jon Sable is scheduled to make an appearance in the ongoing series.

Strikeback! back!

FORMER Malibu/Bravura comic Strikeback!, by Kevin (Godzilla) Maguire and Jonathan Peterson, is set for a return. Image Comics is reprinting the three original Malibu editions, and concluding the series with the as yet unpublished last two issues of the series.

The Image reprint versions of Strikeback! 1 to 3 will feature at least 10 new pages of artwork. The unpublished fourth instalment and the Strikeback! Special are both scheduled to appear during the first quarter of 1996.

Crusade exclusive

BILL TUCCI'S Crusade Entertainment Ltd, the publisher behind the successful bad-girl comic, Shi: The Way of the Warrior, has announced that it has signed an agreement giving Diamond Comic Distributors the sole right to distribute Crusade products in the future.

This decision comes in the wake of three other companies signing agreements with Diamond. Everett Hartsoe of London Night Studios, Dan Vado of Slave Labor Graphics and merchandise specialists Graffiti Designs have all agreed to let Diamond handle their products exclusively, starting from January 1996.

Fantastic failure

MARVEL'S Fantastic Force, the much-vaunted companion title to the Fantastic Four, has been cancelled. The final issue will be number 18, shipping in February. Storylines will be tied up in Fantastic Four.

Miraculous postponed

THE NEW Mister Miracle series, the first issue of which is due to ship this month, has been rescheduled. The change in the time of the book's arrival has been attributed to editorial changes.

Editor Rob Simpson said, "We've got a good response to the previews we sent out for Mister Miracle 1, but we really wanted to make a big splash with the continuing revival of Jack Kirby's new mythology. So we reviewed what we'd done so far, and decided to crank up the excitement."

This direction was not taken for the other Kirby Fourth World revamp, New Gods. Mister Miracle 1 will now ship on February 6, 1996.

A faerie tale

NEIL Gaiman and Charles Vess's Stardust is an original four-issue fairy story scheduled for publication by DC in the New Year.

The story is about the continuing struggle for survival of the faerie folk. Although not linked in any way to Gaiman's The Sandman or the faery characters introduced in it, if the mini-series has a good response on the market it is hoped it may be developed into another Gaiman ongoing series.

21-gun Silvestri

MARC SILVESTRI has a new three-issue series scheduled for January. Named "21", it is a SF series set in a totalitarian 24th century. A hero searches history to find the perfect freedom-fighters to help save his world.

Former Codename: Strykeforce artist Billy Tan is to draw the Silvestri-written series which, if successful, will reappear as an ongoing title.

New Tattoo

CALIBER Press is releasing a new series which features a super-powered warrior woman in a world populated by zombie monsters.

Tattoo, a $2.95 ongoing series, is about a warrior with a quest to challenge a mysterious entity known as The Gate Man, in order to stop him unleashing hellspawn upon an unsuspecting world.

Tattoo travels America, attempting to send the zombies and demons back to their world, but her efforts are hindered by the presence of the Rasta Man, a possible agent of the Gate Man, who is determined to open more zombie portals across the globe.

The initial story-arc is written by Ralph Griffith and Stuart Kerr, partners on Caliber's Oz titles, and artwork is by Jake Jacobson (whose most recent work appeared in DC's Aquaman Annual) and by Jason Baumgartner. The first issue ships on December 18.

Hildebrandt comic

THE GROWTH of the mutant section of the 2099 Universe continues. Not only does X-Nation debut in January (see preview, page 10), but Marvel has secured popular fantasy illustrators the Brothers Hildebrandt to paint a special $5.95 X-Men 2099 one-shot.

X-Men 2099: Oasis is by regular writer John Francis Moore, and is intended to fit into 2099 continuity.

The Crow returns after 6 years

JIM O'Barr's award-winning title The Crow is returning to comics in a new three-issue series, the first for nearly six years.

The Crow was a huge cult hit in the late 1980s, eventually culminating in the film adaptation The Crow, which starred the late Brandon Lee — who accidentally shot himself on the set of the film.

The Crow: Dead Time is the first of a number of mini-series centred on the character and published by Kitchen Sink. O'Barr provides the story and new cover art for the three-issue series, and he has teamed up with scriptwriter John (Judge Dredd) Wagner, and Alex Maleev, who pencils the story.

Asked why he has allowed other creators the opportunity to tackle the Crow, O'Barr said: "Many other creators have been interested in The Crow. This new series [of mini-series] will let other creators tell their own stories using the Crow mythos."

He concluded: "The only rule is that the Crow has to bring a soul back to avenge a wrong and there has to be a cat."

The Crow: Dead Time begins in the late 1860s, where Kansas farmer Joshua and his family are assaulted by a marauding band of renegade soldiers.

His family butchered, and the fatally wounded Joshua narrowly escapes his assailants. Fleeing, he stumbles on a Native American burial ground, nearby which a crow is perched — this crow is a mystical feathered guardian who will not let injustice go unpunished.

The story then flashes forward over a century to the present, where the quest for vengeance is just beginning.

The first issue of the mini-series, suggested for mature readers, retails for $2.95 and ships in January. Kitchen Sink products are distributed exclusively by Capital City Distribution.

The demand for reprints of The Crow comics mini-series (originally published by Caliber Press) and subsequent collections is still large.

Tundra's reprinting of The Crow graphic novel was the best-selling backlist book in the comics market during 1994, and remains until the present in Capital City's top five graphic novel back-orders list.

Kitchen sink is also offering some merchandise to complement the new The Crow series.

The Crow: Dead Time T-Shirt is available in large or extra large sizes, retails for $18.95 and features an Alex Maleev design on a white T-shirt — the first time The Crow's image has been seen on a white shirt, as all previous shirts have been black. The shirt, along with a new Crow baseball cap, also $18.95, ships in January.

The film sequel, The Crow: City of Angels, is currently in pre-production in Los Angeles, with initial shooting having already taken place. Tim Pope — most notably known for making unusual pop videos during the 1980s — is the director, and French actor Vincent Perez stars as a new incarnation of The Crow's vengeful protagonist. The film is scheduled for release in the autumn of 1996.

Caliber's prehistoric bad girl

CALIBER Comics is bringing back Budd Root's critically-acclaimed Cavewoman in a new series beginning in February.

Cavewoman 1, which features the jurassic heroine and time-travelling town Marshville in an tale conceived in the tradition of Steve Bissette's Tyrant and Dark Horse's Age of Reptiles.

The first $2.95 issue features Cavewoman's first experiences in a cretaceous rainy season. The eponymous heroine and the people of Marshville have to contend with furious storms, tornadoes and restless prehistoric beasts (weighing from 100 tonnes upwards) when they journey back in time 20 million years.

Writer and artist Budd Root published the acclaimed but short-lived first series of Cavewoman, and Caliber hopes that the mixture of good-girl art and dinosaur action will prove popular with a broad cross-section of comics consumers.

The new series has already attracted praise from the creative community and US trade press. The first issue of the series which Caliber describes as "sexy, horrifying and humorous" also features a Cavewoman pin-up by Karl (Superboy) Kesel.

Budd Root has also designed a special Cavewoman: Harmony T-shirt (pictured above), which will retail for $14.95.

Team 7 and Black Ops in new Wildstorm mini-series

TEAM 7 III: Dead Reckoning is a new four-part series by Chuck Dixon and an artist yet to be assigned. The series begins with Team 7's final mission in the Sixties, its break-up and the reason for it reuniting — that is, another common threat.

Also from Wildstorm in January is Black Ops, a $2.50 mini-series written and drawn by Dan Norton with inks from Sandra Hope. Black Ops is a new Wildstorm team featuring a group of "special operative" agents.

Crane, Shire, Takomi, Redbird, Geek, GQ and Svetlana Grozny were formerly part of WildC.A.T.s' opponents the Black Razors, but after falling out with controller Miles Craven the members form another rogue outfit to prevent a criminal mastermind obtaining access to new weapons technology.

Quesada reveals all in Ash #0

THE CAUSES of the confusion and bizarre events in the first six issues of Joe Quesada's successful self-published Ash series are about to be revealed.

Ash 0 will give the reader the answers and reveal all the details about fireman Ashley's transformation from a fire-fighting hero to a solar-powered superhero.

Ash 0 is available with two different "enhanced" covers, both with art by Quesada and his longtime collaborator, Jimmy (Ghost Rider 2000) Palmiotti.

The first shows the familiar Ash from the Event Comics series, while the second features the premier appearance of the near-future Ash.

Ash 0 also includes an Ash sketchbook and behind the scenes information on Event Comics and future products. Both editions retail for $3.50 and are due to ship on January 20 1996.

Bisley covers Mutant Chronicles

ACCLAIM Comics has collaborated with manufacturers of role-playing games Target Games to produce a new series, Mutant Chronicles: Golgotha, which is based on Target's Doom Trooper Universe game of the same name.

Simon Bisley has signed on to produce the covers of the series, which feature Bisley-influenced artwork from comics newcomers, painters Alex Horley and William King.

Paolo Parente is the writer of the series, which follows the adventures of Mitch Hunter and Jaka Kramer, two rough and ready mercenaries in a distant future who are caught up in an unholy war against the puppets of the ruling corporations.

Hunter and Kramer fight their way out of the hands of the corrupt inquisition and their vilest torturer, Golgotha — the bitch goddess. The title is scheduled to ship January 1996, retailing for $2.95.

X-Men: a future generation

INTRODUCING the next stage in the evolution of the X-Men concept: X-Nation 2099, the new companion title to the successful X-Men 2099.

Former DC mainstays REBELS's Tom Peyer and Impulse's Humberto Ramos are the creators on the latest 2099 Universe title, which ships on January 18, retailing for $3.95.

Two former X-Men of the future find a group of homeless young mutants. Following the philosophy of Professor X, they offer the kids a home in exchange for training to be the cutting-edge mutant freedom fighters of the future.

MISCELLANEOUS thoughts:

First is the following received from John (The Spectre) Ostrander, to whom, in turn, it had been sent by a friend of his, Ed Dunfey. Some of these I'd heard before and I would guess that some (if not many) of them are even apocryphal. But they're still funny. The origin beyond Ed Dunfey is unknown, except that it apparently was first posted on a computer bulletin board out of San Francisco:

The Butchering of a Language

English signs from various hotels around the world:

In a Tokyo hotel: Is forbidden to steal hotel towels please. If you are not a person to do such thing is please not to read notis.

In a Bucharest hotel lobby: The lift is being fixed for the next day. During that time we regret that you will be unbearable.

In a Leipzig elevator: Do not enter the lift backwards, and only when lit up.

In a Belgrade hotel elevator: To move the cabin, push button for wishing floor — if the cabin should enter more persons, each one should press a number of wishing floor. Driving is then going alphabetically by national order.

In a Paris hotel elevator: Please leave your values at the desk.

In a hotel in Athens: Visitors are expected to complain at the office between the hours of 9 and 11 a.m. daily.

Two signs from a Majorcan shop entrance: English well talking. Here speaking American.

As I noted, I'm not sure how many of these are legit. Years ago I heard about the sign in the Israeli clothing store which read, Today sale on shirts. Tomorrow pants will be lowered.

And I've seen ghastly typos in signs in hotels (I think hotels should know how to spell "accommodate", don't you?).

Still, at least all these countries are trying to be considerate. How many signs do you see in French, Japanese, or Norwegian, for that matter? Heck, you don't even see much multiple signage in Spanish, and that's practically America's second national language.

O. J. Simpson

I was not the least bit surprised when O. J. Simpson pulled out of the TV interview. I never saw the point of it in the first place.

Those who are convinced he did it assume he's a liar and won't believe his claims. So he won't change any minds on that score. He could, however, say something stupid and end up changing the minds of those who had believed he was falsely accused. It's a lose-lose situation. No upside to speak of.

In any event, people keep speculating about the questions they would have liked to ask him. (Like, "So have you bought new gloves?") But me, I'm fascinated by the polls, in the USA, that indicate all those people who state categorically that they believe O. J.

I'd like to ask them questions, questions such as:

- Do you believe Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone?
- Do you believe the Kennedys had Marilyn Monroe assassinated?
- Do you believe Elvis is still alive?
- Do you believe in reincarnation?
- — UFOs?
- — the Loch Ness Monster?
- Do you believe the statistically insignificant Nielsen ratings remotely reflect the viewing habits of the United States of America?
- Do you believe that Clinton has a prayer of being re-elected?
- Do you believe a Joe Eszterhas script — any Joe Eszterhas script — is worth $1.5 million?
- Do you believe that there would be a circumstance under which you'd go on a national talk show and talk about your most personal problems?
- Do you believe Marvel will never open up retail outlets?
- Do you believe everything you read in the tabloids?

I'd be curious to see the number of "yes" answers that overlap. After all, people don't exist in a vacuum, and what they believe in other matters would be indicative to me of just how seriously I should take their other opinions.

One other thing, and then I'll cheerfully leave this dead horse to be flogged by others.

People have been comparing the O. J. trial to that of Lizzie Borden. Immortalised in a poem about doing her parents in, it was popularly believed that she had slain them with an axe. But she was found not guilty.

So, to be fair, I unleash the following doggerel:

*O. J. Simpson took a knife,
Whacked a waiter, whacked his wife.
When they saw what he had done,
They blamed it all on Mark Fuhrman.*

The don'ts in comics

Words can be dangerous and tricky things, open to all sorts of reactions that one never anticipates.

Of the two major comics publishers, Marvel — for more than a decade now — has been the more conservative when it comes to language. At DC you can be pretty much get away with "hell" and "damn" with regularity. At Marvel, "hell" is occasionally tolerated if used tactfully, and "damn" never is.

And, of course, some words are verboten at both companies. Fortunately, in the liberal realm of Quality Communications, you can freely use such words as s*bleep* and f*bleep*, and even the dreaded m*bleeep*er.

These are some examples of various words and situations that, on the face of them, would seem to be harmless. But they are in fact landmines of alternative meanings and should be avoided — not just by novices, but, by experienced comics professionals.

- Do not, under any circumstances, name anyone "Dick".
- Do not have anyone cock a fist. Do not have a sequence set in barnyard wherein you refer to a crowing cock.
- In sequences set in restaurants, do not have anyone toss around cock and bull stories while eating cockaleekie soup.

● Do not have anyone eating shitake mushrooms.

● Despite the fact that the wood of this particular tree was used to make the Ark of the Tabernacle, make no reference whatsoever to the shittah tree.

● Don't bother coming up with a mutant team called X-Cremment. Better men than you have already tried it.

● Don't have a character compliment a female green grocer on her nice melons.

● Don't have a character lay about, lay a foundation, lay a claim or lay an egg.

● Don't have a character who smokes a fag, and don't have them describe being exhausted as being "fagged out".

● Don't describe a character as frolicking in "gay abandon" unless you're prepared to appear on CNN.

● Do not depict a wine and cheese party wherein a character offers to cut the cheese.

● Do not have a deli owner bang his bologna or sling his salami.

● And whatever you do — under no circumstances — and this will get you fired, I guarantee — under no circumstances should you *bleeep*er. © Peter David, 1995

(Peter David, writer of stuff, can be written to at To Be Continued Inc., PO Box 239, Bayport, NY 11705, and would like to see a remake of the film The Agony and the Ecstasy featuring Art Adams as Michelangelo taking forever to finish the Sistine Chapel ceiling.)

Cartoon awards

Report by Dez Plan

IN central London's prestigious Royal Society of Arts building, the Cartoon Art Trust presented its annual awards on November 14.

Supported by Moët champagne, the event had a published introduction by the Trust's patron, The Duke of Edinburgh. In the awards programme, Prince Philip mourned the recent death of cartoonist Carl Giles, and complimented cartoon art on its "contribution to leavening the mundane lump of daily life".

For me personally the event had a bright but false start. Upon entering the building and signing in, I was given an empty wine glass and a folder. Several glasses of red later, I discovered I was in the wrong reception and left the wine-tasting event for the awards ceremony, where Barry Took gave an amusing opening speech.

Gag cartoonist winner was The Telegraph's Matt, who thought there had been a terrible mistake.

Steve Bell won best political cartoonist, receiving his award from Kenneth Baker. Following his criticism of tabloids and praise for David Lowe as his personal favourite, ex-Home Secretary Baker referred to Bell as "an absolutely unreconstructed socialist, the last of a dying breed". Bell retorted with a quip about Baker being more knowledgeable about cartoon art than politics.

Tony Husband took the award for best sports cartoonist of the year, while Ralph Steadman won best advertising cartoonist award.

Lifetime achievement award went to Ronald Searle, whose (faxed) speech asked for the award name to be changed to "the more-or-less lifetime achievement award", adding that he still had a few ideas left.

For his tireless efforts, Paul Gravett was singled out for a special thanks before the audience adjourned to attempt to bluff their way into the wine-tasting, about which word had by then circulated.

IN BRIEF

Small press anniversary

VERY few small press comics and fanzines in the last ten years have managed to last more than a dozen issues. But this month, the Twickenham-based strip 'zine Defective Comics reaches a milestone 100th issue.

Created by Rik Hoskin, Defective Comics #1 was released six years ago and Hoskin has supplied a 28-page story in the 100th issue featuring his superhero creations Agents of Payence.

Defective Comics 100 is available for 75p from G. Cooper, 18 Fields Park, Newbridge, Gwent.

Enigmatic Titan

TITAN Books is releasing a UK edition of Peter Milligan and Duncan Fegredo's award-winning Vertigo thriller, Enigma.

The 196-page trade paperback collection is released on November 30 and retails for £12.50.

FP video award

AT the 1995 British Video Association awards, Forbidden Planet collected the award for Independent Retailer of the Year.

The award, which was presented by Bob Monkhouse, recognised the company's "style and commitment to video-driven celebrity signings."

Robson's Story

KEITH Robson, artist on Jonah in The Dandy, is the latest to jump to TV, working on the ITV childrens' series, Story Store.

The programme is transmitted on all ITV channels at 3.50 on Wednesdays and is narrated by Alan Bennett.

DFP expansion

SAM Banfield, one of the creators and the driving force behind the critically-acclaimed Dead Fly Pie small press anthology, has announced that they have a new magazine in production.

Grub will be an A5 format experimental title for material which would not be suited to Dead Fly Pie. Grub will retail for 50p.

Banfield has scheduled the new magazine despite some negative feelings towards his fellow small pressers. He said after this year's UKCAC, "Small press people come across as hobbyists and this has made us even more aware that Dead Fly Pie is not necessarily a comic readers' comic. In the clubs and record shops we're seen as a quality comic, not a "small press title". It's a label we're getting pretty sick of."

Yellow, but not browning

YELLOW Pages is to include a main heading of Comics in September 1996. For information contact Graham Hoare on 01734 506513.

IN BRIEF

Marvel on the move

MARVEL UK, which is moving from its present central London offices to Panini's headquarters in Kent's Tunbridge Wells, has announced cover price increases to the following books:

- Beavis & Butt-Head, £1.20 from issue 20, on sale January.
- Doctor Who Magazine, £2.95 from issue 234, on sale January.
- Mighty Morphin Power Rangers, £1.10 from issue 18, on sale February.
- Spectacular Spider-Man, £1.10 from issue 6, on sale February.
- X-Men, the fortnightly comic increases to £1.10 from issue 36, on sale February.
- Barbie, £1.20 from issue 19, on sale in January.

Marvel UK has also announced the cancellation of Ren & Stimpy as of issue 16.

Hassan collected

HASSAN I SABBABH is the latest in Trevor Hughes' series of Reefer Madness small press comics

The 36-page strip and article 'zine features mainstream 1960s US comics stories which all featured Hassan I Sabbah, the man who gave his name to hashish (a derivative of the plant cannabis sativa). Also featured are text and a history of the man. The £1.50 (inc p&p) comic is available from Zephyr, PO Box 6, Liscard, Wallasey, Merseyside.

Christmas fair

THE third annual Cartoon Art Trust Christmas Cartoon and Comics Collectors Fair is being held on Sunday December 3rd, in Spitalfields Market, London E1, between 10 am and 4 pm, admission price is £1, children free.

Cover price increases

No Bible stories

FOLLOWING the success of The Redan Company's innovative approach to US comics in their I Love to Read Batman title, more companion pre-school comics are planned in the immediate future.

Unfortunately, it is understood that their latest launch, I Love to Read Bible Stories, may have problems with supermarket chain Asda, who feel the subject matter will offend their Muslim customers.

The final Dare

HAWK Books is releasing its final Dan Dare collected volume in early December.

Ironically, the reprinted material features Dan Dare's Venus story... set in 1995.

The hardcover collection retails for £25 and contains five different serialised stories.

Memorable success

THIS year's Memorabilia 1995 was a phenomenal success, reports organiser Henry Cook.

The final attendance figures for the two-day show at Birmingham's NEC was said to be 11,132, beating any previous attendance record for the venue. Thanks to the organiser's publicity, the event was featured on the ITV Sunday evening program Schofield's Quest and This Morning with Richard and Judy Madeley.

The event was so successful that Cook, who handed over his Milton Keynes marts to Showmasters, has arranged for two further shows in 1996: in March and November.

UKCAC confirmed

THE dates for the 1996 UK Comic Art Convention are March 2-3, 1996. This will be preceded by the annual Trade and Press Day on March 1.

As usual, the event will be held at the Institute of Education and the Royal National Hotel, Bedford Way, London WC1.

Co-organiser, Frank Plowright, believes that the move to the spring date will attract more US publishers, who will not have exhausted their convention budgets by the time UKCAC is due.

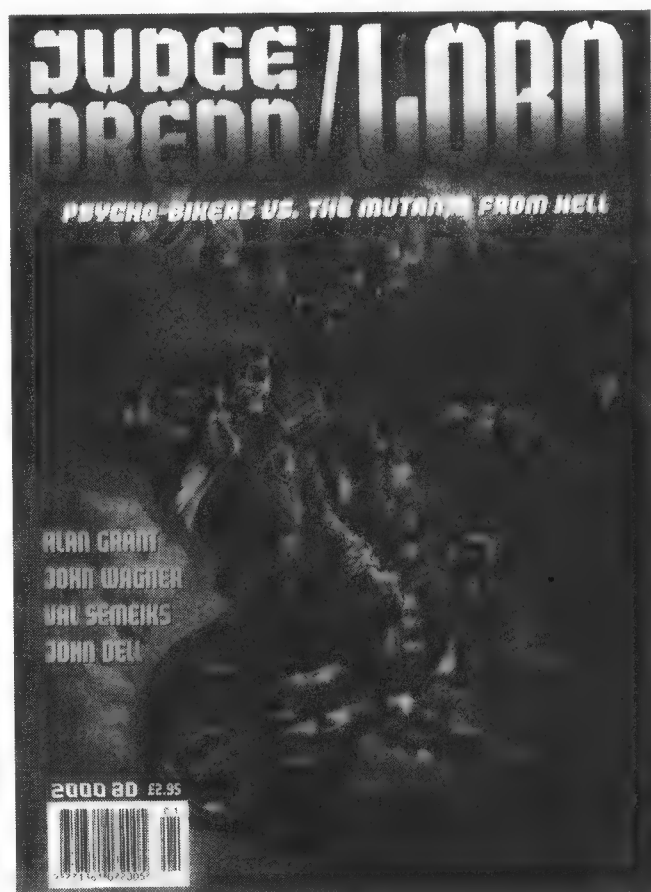

Small press annual

Titled Yow! Annual 1996, it features a collection of comic strips by small press and independent creators such as Chris (Killer Fly) Butler, Ed Pinsent, Lee Kennedy, D'Israeli, Andi Watson and David Morris. It retails for £3.50.

Yow! Annual is available from PO Box 148, Hove BN3 3DQ.

Above: Simon Bisley's painted cover for the forthcoming Fleetway edition of Judge Dredd/Lobo: Psycho Bikers vs The Mutants From Hell, a £2.95 48-page special project in conjunction with DC Comics. Originally scheduled for a November release, the UK edition has been put back until early December. The one-shot is written by the writing team of Lobo's Alan Grant and Dredd's John Wagner, with art by Lobo regulars Val Semeiks and John Dell.

Deadline fails to deliver

DEADLINE, the award-winning anthology magazine created by Steve Dillon and Brett Ewins, has been cancelled due to falling sales.

Launched in October 1988, Deadline introduced such comics characters as Tank Girl by Alan Martin and Jamie Hewlett; Wired World by Philip Bond; Hugo Tate by Nick Abadzis. While still being edited by Ewins and Dillon, early issues featured Johnny Nemo by Pete Milligan and Brett Ewins and Sharp by Steve Dillon.

The publishers had been believed to be holding on despite poor sales, in the hope that the Tank Girl movie would boost sales. But they made the unfortunate move of weakening Deadline by removing her for her own Manga-published title. Ironically, the Tank Girl title is also to cease, with its eighth issue in January, 1996.

Publisher Tom Astor is retaining editor Frank Wynne to handle Deadline Ltd's merchandising and licensing of the Tank Girl property.

The high jump

KNOCKABOUT Comics has announced that the successful parachute by Comic Showcase's Paul Hudson and Comics International's Dez Skinn raised pledges and cheques for over £1,500. More is expected with UKCAC's Frank Plowright jumping this month.

The money (to solicitors Nash & Dowell c/o Knockabout, 10 Acklam Road, London W10 5QZ) is to help the publisher's appeal against Customs seizure of Robert Crumb's book, My Troubles with Women.

Proving that jumping out of an aeroplane at 2,400ft is not a dangerous sport, of the forty daredevils, only one bounced off a caravan into a hedge, and only one sprained an ankle. Fortunately, neither were Knockabout volunteers.

ADVANCE LISTINGS: UK

With the majority of UK-produced comics, trade paperbacks and graphic novels not readily available, the following listing of material to be published next month gives readers the opportunity to order specific titles through newsagents, bookshops or specialist outlets. As such, only titles nationally distributed through federated news outlets are included. All dates, prices and information are assumed to be accurate as provided by publishers. Late shipping, cancellations and changes in content will be detailed in future issues of Comics International.

Associate editor Sarah Bolesworth looks at recent media coverage of comics and related product

The Slug's Trail

AT THE Cartoon Art Trust's annual awards ceremony this month discredited ex-Minister Kenneth Baker took the opportunity to score a paltry political point or two.

Announcing the winner of the Political Cartoonist of the Year Award, Baker characterised widely respected award-winner Steve Bell (of The Guardian) as "an unreconstructed socialist, one of a dying breed".

Unhappily for Baker, Bell is in fact one of a new, remarkably healthy breed — a cartoonist who is politically astute and not easily cowed by the brutish agenda-hijacking of unrepentant Thatcherites. Bell gave as good as he got in his acceptance speech, saltily noting that Baker's sideswipe was probably motivated by the role the cartoonist himself had to play in the abrupt shortening of Baker's political career. The audience's response left no doubt as to where its sympathies lay, and the Slug was forced to retire wounded, leaving a sticky trail behind him.

Fourth Estate's sad state

"RRRRIP! Comics stripped of value" ran the headline above a feature in the personal finance section of the Independent on Sunday (5.11.95). Freelance scribbler Paul Gosling confided to anxious readers that copies of Viz 1, sold for up to £200 "a few years ago", were now being exchanged for as little as £50.

Gosling used this shocking revelation to launch the argument of his piece — that would-be investors still looking for potential in the comics market should beware because, as he so sagely pointed out, "Investments can go down as well as up, and that is as true of comics as it is of houses".

But by assuming there were any punters in Independent on Sundayland who were not aware of such simple truths, Gosling unwittingly illuminated another principle of investment: a little knowledge is a dangerous thing.

That first issue of Viz, only 200 copies of which were produced, was printed on photocopier-type paper. When the Viz bubble was at its most distended, that mythical time when City brokers paid telephone-number sums for early editions, there were lots of forgeries around. After all, unless you searched for minute deteriorations, how would you tell the difference between Viz 1 and a copy of it? But it wasn't long before the brokers got wind of the forged copies.

Next, Gosling turned to the disparate nature of the international comics auction markets. Here in Britain, he wrote, old comics do not attract the same high bids at auction as in the States. He quoted valuer John Stapely from Phillips' action house in Bath — who have, according to Comics International's records, only ever held one auction at which comics were offered.

"Great comic original artwork is treated with the same respect as Cubists or Impressionists," quoth Stapely. Not true, of course. Was it the same Stapely who told the unsuspecting Gosling that Detective Comics 27 (first appearance of Batman) had sold for £71,000 in New York and only £22,000 in London, without mentioning that the two copies were in widely differing condition? But then why spoil a good story with the facts?

In the attic where Gosling finds not old comics but tortures facts, the most horrible gaffe was yet to come. He quoted Chris Rice, assistant manager of Forbidden Planet Bristol. "Mr Rice warns that speculative purchases have become very risky. 'Valiant comics went from £90 or £100 an issue to nothing in a short space of time.'"

Sadly, Gosling's ignorance led readers to imagine, by putting it in italics, that Valiant was the old IPC comic rather than a publisher.

John Stapely, the putative expert, was quoted again in the coup de grace. Gosling continued: "New collectors face further risks, particularly of paying mint-condition prices for less than perfect copies. 'Condition is all important,' says Mr Stapely. of Phillips. 'A single wrinkle in the cover knocks the price by 80 per cent.'"

Back to basics, Gosling! There is no such thing as "mint" once a comic has been packed, strapped and distributed.

But now to the Independent on Sunday's commissioning editor, with whom the burden of blame should rest. Steve (probably the son of someone famous) Lodge showed surprise that anyone should criticise Gosling's piece. "Actually, I don't even know if he reads them [stifled guffaw], but I thought that it was a good idea to do a piece about comics. I mean, it's colourful. And I don't think you see anything like that anywhere else." On being assured that in fact you do, he replied: "Oh. Well, perhaps I don't read the papers enough [giggle]". Yes indeed. Still looking for economies at The Independent, are they?

Web of free enterprise

MERCHANDISING is proving an increasingly important element of the comics industry, and UK corporations are beginning to wake up to the potential of product carrying licensed characters.

In its new commercial guise, the Post Office has filled its 220 post offices with Batman Adventures greetings cards — a move which, as merchandising manager Ken Vinton told Comics International, "has proved extremely successful".

Confectionary manufacturer Trebor Bassett, according to trade magazine CTN, has jumped on the gravy train with "Barratt Spiderman [sic] Superhero Blackcurrant Squares and Barratt Spiderman Gums". The move was made because of the high-rating Spider-Man cartoon series. Comics publishers have discovered that the route to the pot of gold for which they're so ardently searching lies in TV adaptations. Will Spider-Man Adventures (a comic based on the TV series) outsell the real thing? Is this where, in Britain, the Webslinger finally sticks?

R Crumb — the real story

THE TELEGRAPH is an odd sort of newspaper — a fact cleverly picked up by its recent advertising campaign, in which a punter says that he reads all of it, but only agrees with half of it.

At the root of this "reader's dilemma", of course, lies the fact that despite being owned and managed by dyed-in-the-wool Tories, the newspaper itself is staffed by professionals.

A case in point this month was the Sunday Telegraph's coverage of Robert Crumb publisher Knockabout Comics' troubles with HM Customs & Excise.

In an excellent report by arts correspondent Catherine Milner (12.11.95), the seizing of Robert Crumb's book by customs focused not on the prurient potential of My Troubles with Women, but on the real nub of the story — the new "taste it and see" customs regulations. This quality of journalism was in keeping with comics coverage in the Telegraph over the years — timely, well informed and well written. Somewhere in there, there is a commissioning editor with a finger on the pulse.

Express track to oblivion

IF ONLY the same could be said of the Prime Minister's favourite newspaper, The Express.

In the wake of the announcement that The Express was up for sale and the subsequent sacking — sorry, that should be voluntarily negotiated departure — of editor Sir Nick Brown-nose Lloyd, the news that Andrew Lloyd Webber was thinking of buying The Express must have proved too much for overworked hacks.

In a sweeping round of cutbacks, its syndicated newsstrip Rupert the Bear was cancelled. Fair enough, you might say, in a newspaper poised between financial and intellectual oblivion. But when a blizzard of readers' complaints came in, the paper was forced to reinstate the strip, albeit temporarily. Why? Because they'd cut Rupert in the middle of a story.

f RAME TO FRAME

The Edge of Forever's Mike Conroy overviews the film and television industry's on-off love affair with comics characters

Hal Foster created Prince Valiant in 1934 as a Sunday (only) newspaper strip. In 1953 the character made it to the movies with Robert Wagner in the title role; 38 years later (in 1991) came an animated television series.

Now Bernard Eichinger, in association with Hearst Entertainment Distribution Inc, has a new movie version of the classic character in pre-production.

Although contracts have yet to be signed, the screenplay is to be by Anthony Hickox & Carsten Lorenz with the former also slated to direct.

Carolco, the current owners of the option on a likely Spider-Man movie, have voluntarily filed for Chapter 11 Bankruptcy. Whether this is a good or bad thing for everyone holding their breath for James Cameron's interpretation of Marvel's web-slinger is a hard call as 20th Century Fox are in earnest negotiation to purchase most of Carolco's assets; Fox is Cameron's current "home".

Coming Attractions

Many magazines carry listings of genre movies currently at some stage of production. However, quite often they appear to include speculative entries. Our listing, while not as all-encompassing as those of some other magazines, details only those movies that we have been able to confirm from more than one source. As times goes by we will investigate those missing movies and include them only when we are certain of our facts. It is worth remembering that many producers take up options on comic book characters and/or concepts but only a small percentage ever actually make it into production and many of those that do take years to reach the screen. For example, Judge Dredd's journey to the screen took 15 years!

* Indicated updated entry from last issue

A monthly rundown on the latest opinions of fans and professionals from Britain and America, as expressed on the computer internet. Compiled by Richard Johnston and the NETWORKS team.

Teknophased out

Jeremy Holstein (jholstein@crocker.com) posted on the 18th October: I happened to meet Paul Jenkins inside of my local comic shop this evening, and was disturbed to learn that Tekno Comics has cancelled Teknophage as of issue 10. Teknophage was, in my opinion, the best of the Tekno Comics line and it is a tragedy to see it be lost in the shuffle while tripe like Lady Justice rakes in the big numbers.

Iron Lady Luck

Rod Underhill (72142,123) posted: Ironwood 11 is now out, being the final issue of the oft delayed porn and sorcery production by the very talented Mr Bill Willingham. Bill, a former member of our collection of comic pros, was the talent behind one of the best superhero team-up titles ever done by anyone: The Elementals.

Meanwhile, and here's the weird part, Bill has moved to Las Vegas, Nevada, where he has taken a job as a poker player in a somewhat not so very nice hotel.

Evidently playing poker professionally has been a long held dream of Bill's. This industry is so odd it breaks my heart. Some guys create comic book characters and gather great wealth and fame. Others toil away at day jobs hoping for a big break, while producing some of the most creative work ever done. Bill's like that, I suppose.

Home on the range

There is one comic book that has gained legendary status on the internet as a phenomenally difficult comic book to find. Published by traditional book publisher, Doubleday, written and drawn by Kyle Baker, The Cowboy Wally Show sold so badly that official statistics show more copies were returned and pulped than were actually printed. Kyle Baker's subsequent success has meant that The Cowboy Wally Show has become a holy grail for some comic fans, and copies sell on rec.arts.comics.marketplace for hundreds of dollars.

On October 10th, Lawrence Denealt (ldenealt@aol.com) posted: Save those body parts, kids! Marlowe & Company is proud to announce that The Cowboy Wally Show, the legendary graphic novel by Kyle Baker, is returning to print in the Spring of 1996.

Response was predictable. Cekman (cekman@pomona.edu) posted: Homina, homina, homina... There is a God! Believe it or not, the library in the town where I go to college had The Cowboy Wally Show, albeit a much-abused copy. When I read it, I had no idea it was so precious; but now that I know, of course, I can't find it. Some sharp-eyed collector probably snatched it up...

More tribute and praise continues to roll in. One truly wonders why?

Dark news

Daniel Presado (76403,2450) published the following hype on October 17th: A very special publishing company is coming your way in 1996. More info real soon. Artists involved so far include Daniel Presado, Fauve, Tim Vigil, Jim Balent, The Dark One, and James O'Barr...

It's a shame that so many of the people involved appear to be complete unknowns, otherwise it might have been big news. But, in case it is, you read it here first!

Bars and stripes

Enquiries were made by some retailers as to whether Image Comics would include barcodes on the covers of their comics, as Marvel and DC Comics do.

Pat O'Neill (70262,227), contributing editor to Wizard, posted on the 16th October: What business is Image in? Selling comics or producing pretty art? If it's selling comics, they should put barcodes on the covers.

Mark Waid (72102,2734), replied: God forbid we should introduce the notion of aesthetics. I fall into that camp of folks who, were they to have control of the world, would strip those goddamned zebra stripes off our front covers and damn the consequences.

O'Neill returned with: I thought the purpose of the cover, ultimately, was to sell the magazine. That being the case, the UPC helps sell the book, in the sense that it makes it easier for the retailer to handle it.

Waid continued: The purpose of the cover is to sell the magazine. To the consumer. To get him excited and jazzed, to advertise the contents, to tantalize him intalaying out his cash.

Don Markstein (76443,2401) posted: Why not put the codes in the letter column? Or in the story, on a billboard or something? Or make up a character who has that as a chest emblem and have him guest-star a lot?

Comic combinations

The varied types of comic shops became a talking point on Compuserve. Matt High (72072,1210) from Antarctic Press posted on the 28th October: I've seen a few strange combinations before. The top store in El Paso (the one that sells the most AP books in the region) is a combination office supply/comics store — stick the staplers and rolodexes next to those Spawns! I visited a store in Euless a few years ago that was a combination gun store and comic shop. Last month I ran across a store in Stephenville that was a combination tanning salon/beauty parlor/comic shop (that sold mostly bad girl comics, go fig).

Life's a pitch

As part of a thread titled "When The Comic Book Industry Ends", writer Len Strazewski (73710,2552) posted: You should hear the horror stories of pitching new projects to publishers. New ideas? Can't take a risk. Old ideas? Won't sell. Editors' ideas? They have to work — we're editors! The creators have suddenly twigged something many readers have seen for a long time.

Comics on the net

Networks is currently trying to compile a list of World Wide Web pages about the comics industry.

Unfortunately, when searching for the word "comics" on the net, you are as likely to get to Ben Elton as you are Ben Grimm. The following should help you out.

The first place to look for comics on the World Wide Web is Yahoo (www.yahoo.com/). Yahoo is an internet directory that has been around almost since the internet began. Choose Entertainment, then Comics, and you'll be presented with a large list of World Wide Web addresses which you can then access.

Harbor Point Mall (www.insv.com/) is a World Wide Web site with a number of comic book addresses. You have a choice of the Comic Book Legal Defence Fund, Astro Comix, Exhibit A Press, Fiasco Comics, Mushroom Comics, Vantage Comics, Xero Comics, Sirius Entertainment as well as pages devoted to Spawn and Steve Bissette's Tyrant. Each is distinctly different with the Spawn pages (www.insv.com/spawn/) taking pride of place for graphic design, and the Comic Book Legal Defence Fund (www.insv.com/cbladf/) having strong articles and discussions.

Hero Illustrated (www.nuke.com/) now only published on the net, has been taking advantage of the high page count by including a fortnightly self-interview by Dave Sim, analysing the comic book industry, recommending solutions and taking up a lot of space to do so.

Comic Shop News, (www.actwin.com/csn/) a free weekly newsletter distributed around comic shops, has its CSNsider column available on the internet weeks before it is printed.

Caption (metro.turnpike.net/C/caption/) is devoted to the yearly alternative and small press comics convention, and to the magazine of the same name. Features include selected reprints from the magazine and information about the convention when it is made available.

Grant Morrison Voodoo Love Fetish (www.r166.com/bobek/gmvlf/) is a page devoted to one of Britain's popular comic writers by a self-confessed obsessive fan. Visually stunning and a mine of Morrison information.

The Hype (www.hype.com/) pages give exclusive information gathered on the internet for a number of topics, including the Hype Comics Cafe.

Net facts:

The Usenet newsgroups, cover a wide variety of comics discussion under various group "hierarchies".

The rec.arts.comics.hierarchy contains sub sections such as info, misc, x-books, marvel-universe, dc-universe, strips, marketplace, alternative and elfquest.

Smaller groups in the alt.comics hierarchy include Superman, Batman, classics, and fan-fiction.

There is a rec.arts.manga hierarchy and individual groups such as alt.fan.Peter-David, and alt.fan.Tank-Girl. There are a number of comics professionals often online, including Neil Gaiman, Peter David, Walt Simonson, Chris Claremont, Jim Lee, Dan Chichester, Fabian Nicieza, Scott Lobdell, Mark Waid, Warren Ellis, Larry Hama, George Perez, Steven Grant, Howard Chaykin and Barry Windsor-Smith. Several comics companies have a net presence too, including DC Comics, Dark Horse, Marvel, Antarctic, Slave Labor, Image, Tekno, Crusade, and WaRP.

Comics International is on the net, our email address for electronic correspondence is Comics@Quality.win-UK.net — but don't forget to always include your full address on anything you send.

Compuserve offers three comics forums: Comics Animation; Comics Publishers and Comic Strips Funnies. All three forums offer "live" discussion facilities, enabling you to have a conversation with anyone anywhere in the world for the cost of your Compuserve fees and a local phone call.

The World Wide Web has over a hundred sites catering for all sorts of comics, ranging from the professional to retail stores all over the world using it as an advertisers forum. Just look in the WWW directories under Comics.

Neulogisms:

New terms with which you may be unfamiliar when starting out on the Internet: AOL - America Online is a specific server which provides users in the United States to access their own groups. DC Comics has an AOL point, but be warned: ignore the pre-written software available free with magazines such as Wizard, it is impossible to access AOL in the UK, and if access is acquired via the USA, it proves to be extremely expensive.

Occasionally, information and posts sent to AOL are reposted on the main internet.

Net - Abbreviation for "internet". Lots of computers across the world joined together by satellite, by phone lines and cables. Anyone can join.

E-mail - short for electronic mail, mail sent from one address (something@somewhere.else) to another across the internet.

Compuserve, Genie, Prodigy, Win-UK.Net - are examples of companies that provide a limited subscription access to parts of the internet.

Compuserve is one that provides a CB (Citizen's Band) facility which has access to either PG rated forums or adult forums — but it must be noted they cost a lot of money, despite Compuserve's online facilities being substantially reduced in price.

WWW page - The World Wide Web. Pages of interactive text and graphics letting you watch videos, play games, listen to music, or get a specific piece of information.

User - Someone who uses a computer and is linked to the net with it.

Post - A message sent to a newsgroup.

Newsgroup - Posts are collected under different subject headers. New groups are always being created, there's one for you out there somewhere!

:-) :-) They are smileys, showing that what you've just said was a joke! Essential for users without a sense of humour. Just turn your head sideways and all will be revealed.

aDVANCE LISTINGS

READERS: You can use this Advance Listings section as an order form with your direct sale retailer or mail order supplier. Simply mark the items you require, preferably in red or blue pen or with a highlight marker. Then detach this section of the magazine and return it to your supplier, together with a note of your name, address and phone number and guarantee not missing any of the new titles published. Certain retailers may not accept standing orders, so check with them first. Using this system will also help your supplier when ordering titles, to know which are presold.

All prices of US titles listed are in dollars. Where dollar and sterling prices (ie $1.50/£1) is stated, UK price is not the air-freighted import price, but instead denotes that the title will be nationally distributed approximately ten weeks later at a lower-than-airfreight price. Import prices are usually converted at a rate of $1.00 = 85p.

Shipping dates given are usually one week before airfreight copies arrive with your retailer/mail order supplier. All dates, prices and information are assumed to be accurate as provided by publishers. Late shipping, cancellations and changes in content will be detailed in future issues of Comics International.

The Last Word Goes to.....

I want to take this opportunity, on behalf of everyone at Comic Biz, to give a heart-felt thank you to you, our customers who help to make our jobs a pleasure.

During 1995, with your help, we have become Europe's foremost mail-order comic-book dealer specialising not only in supplying Golden Age & Silver Age comics and collectibles, but also through our many years of experience and our understanding of the ever changing comics industry, in supplying today's "Hot Books". We have worked hard at our reputation for accurate grading, speedy despatch and for offering the best service that money can buy. If you've yet to experience Comic Biz, I urge you to do so - you won't regret it!

Throughout 1996 we will be bringing you a number of exciting and exclusive offers, the first of these, the Double Impact Signed Limited Sets is on page 9 of this catalogue. During the next 12 months we will also be offering you an even better and expanded subscriptions-for-new comics service through our newly formed relationships with some of the world's biggest and best distributors and publishers, of course, the usual Comic Biz high-standard will accompany all of our new projects.

Once again, a very big thank you!

Paul Sassienie

CEO - Comic Biz

Wants-Lists

Our sources for vintage & "hot" comic-books and collectibles both in the UK and USA are second to none. "Wants Lists" are seriously worked on with no obligation to you except keeping your list with us up to date. Call us today for more information about our free computerised "Wants List" service.

The Search continues...

We are urgently looking to buy vintage (as well as "hot" current), British and American comics & collectibles. If you have any items to sell, whether "one-offs" or an entire collection, call us now for the very best prices!

Currently in stock are thousands of comics from the 1930's to the present day with new stock arriving all of the time. Call us now and we'll tell you in an instant the price and availability of any item in stock.

Comment by Alex Thomas, Stevenage, Herts

FABIO Barbieri has finally lost it. The man has fallen off the edge of sanity and clearly wallows in the depths of some strange neurosis. I found his attack (and there's no other way to put it) on Darren Mason in Comics International 60 one of the lowest levels the Letters column has ever fallen to.

After Mason's rather stupid accusations about Andy Brewer's Battleground (back in issue 45 or 46), one would have hoped that he wouldn't embark on any more pointless arguments. When I saw his letter defending D. R. Booth's dig at independent readers in issue 59, the first thing I thought was "not again". But after reading his piece, I was relieved and quite impressed with his angle. In fact, his argument was anything but argumentative.

So why Fabio's irrational outburst? The only thing I can put it down to is Darren dared mentioned Fabio's name alongside people he has a history of disagreeing with. I could see no "attacks" by Darren on Fabio.

The gist of Darren's argument and essentially the point of D. R. Booth's original comment is that superhero fans have a place in this industry — a rather large place. If we want to read superhero comics, we will. If you don't like it, tough!

Reubs Willmott, in Comics International 61, said he thinks comic shops should be ordering independents as it is "probably no more costly or risky than taking a chance on yet another increasingly expensive superhero title from Marvel or DC," and that "most comic shops cater for superhero readers with little willingness to broaden their horizons."

A comic shop would probably have to drop a percentage of the stuff they do sell to give independents a try, with no realistic chance of selling the material. They would, especially if they were a small shop without the reputation of Page 45, surely face some sort of financial crisis. The problem will never be rectified while most UK comic shops remain in the control of the enthusiastic amateur and it won't be solved by major comic shops, because indie publishers don't appeal to a big enough audience for larger shops.

We live in a commercial "high street" world and most independent comics don't belong in that world. The retailers aren't to blame here, they are people who have to make a living for our benefit. If it ain't dead, don't bury it with altruistic remedies.

In a perfect world (or Japan), comic shops would have the profiles of a Boots or an Our Price, every body would read comics. Sadly, most comic shops are grotty little places run by enthusiasts without the budget to experiment.

Because of personal restrictions, people should read what they enjoy. Being tempted to something different means, in a lot of cases, dropping something else. If experimenting with new titles fails, you are left with a comic that will end up in some 10p sale and have the added dilemma of then trying to find the comic you dropped, so you can catch up.

Barbieri's views are synonymous with fascism. He continually tells us to read what he likes while telling us what we like is crap! I knew a girl a bit like him once, we called her a "dance fascist" because whatever music she played at parties, she always expected you to "Get Up and Dance!"

Yet Fabio isn't alone in this burgeoning war between mainstream superhero fans and independent comics fans. I'd like to point out that the small press bible Zum in its own terminology denigrates the idea of a fanboy, "Fanboy: The insult of insults. Fanboys are the pimplly offensive fans of the mainstream superhero genre, there can be no lower form of scum in the eyes of a creator of underground comics."

This is possibly one of the most offensive descriptions aimed at fellow comic fans I have ever seen. And some of you "perfect" people feel you have the right to defend a part of the comics industry that continually hoists two fingers up at the rest of us. These people make me sick.

Hey, I'm a fan boy. I read superhero comics. The fact that I have a healthy sex life, social life and a life in general doesn't matter. I'd better dump my girlfriend, stop going to the pub and lock myself in my bedroom with all my Image comics and use my right arm for something more productive than writing letters defending superheroes. If this is what the alternative press think, then they should have a look in the mirror.

I get the impression that there is an element out there who are so disill-unioned with their own failed attempts to break into the comics market, that they vilify any superhero fan as being some spotty oik with no life outside of his or her bedroom.

If it hadn't been for the superhero genre, comics would still be wallowing in the undergrowth — where the small press currently are. Every superhero fan deserves the right to defend his hobby. We do see a definite leaning towards the vocal minority of the independent sections in Comment and Letters, but it's only natural. The gist of all of these comics praising the independent or small press do so at the expense of the mainstream superhero comic. Why then should the small press suddenly be up in arms when a couple of people say, "Hey, what's wrong with superhero comics, some of them are really good."?

Right, I'm going to piss a few people off now. I've been to several UKCACs, more marts than I care to remember and a few comic shops. People who read independent comics, or produce their own small press comics are, in my experience, usually: unemployed, seemingly have no self-respect when it comes to personal hygiene or appearance, have extreme political and often anarchistic views, spend hours on end watching 18 rated videos or reams of the latest hit cult-TV series, blame the government for the fact that they are themselves sad hopeless people, are not people you would like to take home to meet your parents, and (amazingly!) are some of the nerdy people whose appearance you would associate with superhero readers.

There. Something else for the torch bearers to have a whinge about. At least they'll be leaving the others alone. Why don't we just get down to business.

Mainstream vs Alternative. It could rival Marvel versus DC in terms of excitement! Hey, Comics International could run a competition: Win a sad bastard for a day: all you have to do is decide which of the following people is the saddest bastard in comics fandom. Is it a) Fabio Barbieri; b) Darren Mason; c) D. R. Booth; d) fill in your name! Dez can be ref!

My word. We are a touchy bunch, aren't we?

One final thing: Mason made a very valid point which everyone seems to have overlooked. In the halcyon days of the comics industry (which everyone seems to want to talk about) there were as many sow's ears as silk purses being published, probably more.

Today, there is still some excellent mainstream superhero comics. The problem is they are drowning in a sea of mediocrity.

People should stop force feeding their comic preferences down other people's throats — that's what the Reviews column is for!

Comics will come of age

Comment by Peter Ashton, Birmingham

A LOT of heat and not much light has been generated in the past year in these pages over the alternatives v superhero debate (if one can call it that) and thinking about it rationally for a while, I thought I'd offer an explanation as to why it is I read alternatives and haven't touched a superhero comic in years. I apologise if I'm repeating myself in this but I hope a clear statement will enable the debate to continue (or be concluded) in a slightly more civilised manner than has been the case of late.

To begin with, the superhero genre is just that, a genre of comics in the same way that action-adventure is a genre of film and romance is a genre of fiction. In no way can I accept that superheroes are the be all and end all of comics.

Of course, I doubt many superhero fans would deny this, but the statement is often made that because the superhero genre makes up such a large part of the medium, it deserve more space and more publicity through the simple economics of supply and demand, and therefore the fans of the alternative genres should put up or shut up, or both.

Now, I cannot accept this. Comics are my preferred medium. I understand them, I enjoy them, I critically analyze them, depending on my mood. I prefer comics to books and films for this very reason. You could say I love the medium. Now, the medium is still very young. It's been said that comics never grew up in the 1980s, they reached adolescence, and I would agree, although not with such a pessimistic tone.

This quantum leap, due mainly to the efforts of creators I need not name here, was an important step in the development of our medium, but only a step. I feel there's a whole staircase ahead of us which only a few are starting to climb, and I find myself reading and enjoying those comics on step two or three and getting bored with those content to sit on step one and vegetate.

So where do superheroes fit into this? Surely if they are but a genre then they can march upstairs with the alternatives, and surely the alternatives can be complacent too. Sure, I'd go along with that.

The Maxx has managed to transcend its superhero label to become just a great comic, and I love it for that.

Comics like The Hulk and Starman, often hailed as being groundbreaking, are essentially superhero titles. And there are a shitload of indies which are formula-driven drivel, unable to make it to step two due to their narrow-minded self-satisfaction.

But the fact remains that those comics which are ground-breaking are, nine times out of ten, non-superhero.

Take David Lapham's Stray Bullets as an example. Here we have a wonderful comic, utilising storytelling techniques and art styles (so inexorably linked they become one) like no other I can think of. It's self-published.

No major publisher would have the balls to take this on.

Lapham is self-publishing, not out of rejection, but because the only way he can have complete control over his non-superhero work is to do it all himself. A superhero-centred industry would ruin it. This is a sad state of affairs which I would like to see changed.

At this point it would be easy to slip into a Dave Sim-like rant about the evils of corporate publishing against the creative mind, but that would require a separate comment so I'll refrain. But when defending the creator's right to create from the soul, rather than the wallet, corporate ideologies are always going to be up there, and good business sense says publish what sells, even if it is to the detriment of the medium.

You see, I make a distinction there. The industry is not the medium, just as the medium is not the superhero genre.

So, what it boils down to is that I love comics which are created by people who love comics, not money or fame or anything so insubstantial. I want great comics. In fact I demand great comics, and if anything gets in the way of my desire for great comics, then I will attack it. It will come as no surprise to the reader that the dominance of the formula-ridden, genre-trapped garbage I see adorning the walls every time I visit a comic shop is the enemy here. I do not want to see all superhero comics banned, but I would like to see them tempered by the emergence of more non-superhero comics, a trend which is starting to bloom, but which could so easily be trampled on.

The medium is being stifled at adolescence by this domination and I want to see it grow up without getting depressed, ram-raiding Dixons and going to borstal.

I want to see it pass its A levels, go to Oxford where it will graduate with a 1:1 in Great Comics and go on to rule the entertainment world. Nothing less.

And I will fight for it at every stage.

Comment by Fabio P. Barbieri, Leytonstone E11

PEOPLE who start on a new idea — or one that seems new to them — often find they pitched its immediate potential too high.

Four months ago I set up a comics distribution service for my fellow amateur cartoonists, buoyed up by the success of The Jack Kirby Quarterly and by positive reactions from retailers and cartoonists. It seemed easy at the time; only that rugged veteran of many campaigns Dez Skinn warned me (amidst much encouragement and advice) that I was setting out on a hard path.

My goal was to place small press comics in every store in London, so that little-known but brilliant authors should have their chance with a real public. For a small flat fee, refundable in case of poor sales, I undertook to distribute to most shops in Greater London and get each issue at least two months' exposure. I put the fee as low as possible, to suit budgets I suspected to be as small as mine.

Small pressers don't do it for the money — that's axiomatic — but they value access to the public, and certainly any chance of covering expenses and perhaps making a little beer money is welcome to them.

More to the point, most of them deserve it. The best part of my enterprise has been discovering just how much raw talent lies around in this country. I had to turn down a number of submissions on account of insufficient technique (books must be good enough to be accepted on their own merits, because I have to talk twenty retailers into carrying them) but almost none on lack of talent or originality.

I can say I'm proud of my portfolio; wise, witty, entertaining, involving, intellectual, thoughtful, inventive, and sometimes wonderful books, of every kind and stripe from Joel Nisbet's excellent super-hero to the Raw-type intellectualism of Ed Pinsent's The Staring Eye.

Almost all retailers welcomed my terms. I offered the comics on sale-or-return (so the retailer doesn't risk his own money), with a guarantee I'd take them back after two months unless he wanted any comic for longer (so he isn't threatened with dead stock).

Even one man who turned me down told me that mine was a "very fair" offer, he just didn't take small press. Almost everyone else did, though, including people who'd never seen a small press comic before!

On the whole, comics shop managers are a malignant breed. Most of them got into the business for the love of it — you don't get rich running a store in outer London — and are capable of enthusiasm and interest, with some of the smaller stores leading the way.

But the success of The Jack Kirby

Quarterly, whose sales tripled in two years with no end in sight, made me overrate London's ability to absorb new stuff. It may, over time, get used to unfamiliar things; but overnight hits are rarer than I thought.

Also, retailers are a fragile, overworked lot, with little time to promote lesser items, and prone to going belly-up at most inconvenient times. New management in a shop invariably means disaster for the unlucky small presser, last on the list of priorities. The Stateside situation, abundantly described in #59, was bad in more ways than one: not only were outstanding items not paid, but the renamed store seems to employ incompetent teenage staff who showed open contempt for my goods.

The worst sign was that the people in charge wouldn't show their faces, but phoned down their message to me. When you can't deal with principals, you're in trouble; and when you hear the dreaded expression "shelf space", you'd better give up that store as a bad job. It seems a small, hairy number of retail-trade troglodytes still hold to the prehistoric belief that if you place top-selling mainstream titles everywhere on your shelves, your sales will grow: a superstition on the level of astrology or palmistry.

If a book is a known best-seller, it will sell wherever you put it, so long as it's visible; that's the definition of a known best-seller. The only way you could ever lose sales on it is if you under-ordered it, or hid it altogether away from customers, but there is no mathematical equivalence between giving yards of space to Image's latest bikini bamboo and selling more copies of it.

This leads to my biggest beef with retailers. Even the best of them hide the small press rack away in a corner. This gives the casual browser an almost shame-faced feel, and doubtless the image problem that small, unknown fanzines have when pitted against the hype barrage of big players. The small press rack should be visible and proud, placed if possible, near the counter so that the retailer can, on occasion, do a little discreet lobbying.

But the main problem is the public. You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make it read Nigel Sambell's Astonishing Beer Stories. The few who do will enjoy it hugely, but the art style is like nothing most fans have ever seen; and so, timorous and disconcerted, they huddle shyly outside this new country, nervously look in, and depart.

You know that one day they will enter in; first one, then a few, then, perhaps, many. The quality of what I'm offering is too manifest to be resisted forever.

And this is the reason why I intend to plod on. The possibility of a Bone is quite real; I already have one runaway hit, The Jack Kirby Quarterly, and nobody can tell me that I can't have another.

There is a good old adage in showbusiness, that has been proved right again and again: "If you throw enough st on the wall, some of it is gonna stick".

Rooney in the sky with diamonds

Comment by Del Rooney, Glasgow

AFTER watching The Wizard of Oz, I had a strange dream.

I was on the yellow brick road, and there was Peter David sitting on a very large fence — the very same one he had paid so much rent for. On one side of the fence was a quicksand pit — on the other a pit of red hot coals. No matter what side Peter came down on, he would be sucked under or roasted alive. I laughed and walked on.

Blimps were flying overhead waving banners stating: ignorance is power and censorship for the masses. Missiles were firing at the blimps, all missing their targets.

I moved on and there, amidst a cluster of red white and blue flowers, stood a woman clad in a star-spangled banner robe, holding aloft a copy of Verotika. She was breathing fire and brimstone about one of its strips, A Taste of Cherry.

Dr. Mary Williams Ahmed (a psychoanalyst's dream) rustled her gown angrily as she wailed aloud in the name of the good book and McCarthy, "a curse upon comic companies who dare to pervert, corrupt and put unclean thoughts into the minds of good clean moral upright young American children."

These same children then came along and pelted her with rotten eggs, tomatoes, old copies of EC comics, and foul-smelling lillies (with wings!).

Unperturbed, she carried on screeching, waving her Bible in one hand, while holding onto her broomstick with the other.

Her followers — the Moral Majority, the Christians and the Klu-Klux-Klan, huddled at her feet, waving their neon crosses, while over in the corner a few moonlighting Klansmen did a fast TV commercial for Whitey soap powder — which would make all Republican middle class people whiter than white!

Dez Skinn passed overhead on a parachute, his arms full of Comics Internationals. I was amused to see he was wearing his "Buy shares in Comics International" T-shirt. As the first wet drips poured down, I looked up expecting rain, but it was only Dez, relieving himself all over Ahmed. Short but sharp criticism, no bout about it.

Sucking hastily on a Tunes sweet, Ahmed continued roaring into the heavens. The steam of urine pouring off her body. "In this heah comic," she howled, "A woman is repeatedly raped. Her vagina is set on fire and her body is abused in awl mana of cruel and abusive ways. Is this what we want our young 'uns t' read?"

"Yes!" chanted some passing teenagers, as they spat all over her.

Then the Earth opened up swallowing them whole into its dank and murky netherlands below. The grandeur of it was akin to a scene from a Swamp Thing comic, but not as beautiful.

I looked back. Peter David was swaying dreadfully on his rather wobbly fence. The wind howled mercilessly as it first blew him one way, then the other. Last I heard he was still screaming something about readers having rights too.

A pop group passed by called Closed Minds, singing about standards, home, Maw's apple pie, patriotism, and milking the last big bucks outta spotty comics fanboys.

The wind howled. The air got chilly and I found myself facing a signpost with arrows pointing in different directions. The first displayed a skull and crossbones with the chilling message The Lord never read comics — kneel before the moral majority.

The other arrow read No man's land — abandon hope all ye who enter here.

Always a sport, I set off in this direction, shivers galloping up and down my spine.

Another signpost loomed ahead in the misty grey landscape. I now knew exactly where I was.

UK Unlimited, it read. Pollution-Land. God help us all. Then I saw a band of muck-encrusted men in tattered army uniforms playing Rule Britannia on instruments which had so much rust on them, no gleam of brass could be discerned. The fact that they were playing off-key and out of time struck me as entirely natural. They also wore black armbands.

Beyond the trees I spotted a bunch of uniformed customs gorillas, all lying back in swivel chairs, feet up on desks, reading the Cherry strip in Verotika.

Some of them were laughing at it. Others masturbating, while not a few were stuffing Cherry comics into their tunics to add to their vast collection of erotica. All to help ease their sexual urges in the deep shadows of the night.

They were munching bananas, without peeling the skin off first.

I wildly reflected that Customs men were not chosen for their intellect, as all small comic shops raided by them would be the first to attest. They were human animals howling "unclean! Perverted!

Filthy!" after spotting two tiny sexy (!) panels in an otherwise average comic.

I knew why they did it, of course. They wanted their 15 minutes of fame, an extra fiver in their pay packets, and swift promotion so when the never-ending Customs redundancies came along, they would be overlooked as being irreplaceable. No one ever is, really. But have you ever tried arguing with a uniformed gorilla? Oh, you have!

Sensing I was coming to the end of my journey, I espied a fat wee clown, all covered in green, standing waist deep in a pool of blood, reading an illustrated bible. This creature at once both fascinated and repelled me.

His name was etched on his wrinkly head: Fabio Barbieri. I should have known that he wouldn't stop talking; babbling on like a lunatic (typecasting?) as he sank lower and lower into the thick congealing blood of all his victims.

Oh yes, Barbieri had won every argument he had ever had with anyone... except one. I was that one. Yes, it was glorious. This self-proclaimed historian (of what?) slowly drowning in blood!

Oh, how he raved! About morals, standards, my being the son of Satan! (But that's another tail!) Being comparatively humane, I did what had to be done.

I spat on Barbieri.

Really, I hate spitting. It's a filthy barbaric habit. Still, I did enjoy spitting on him. I felt fully entitled. He had taken me on and lost. Then I put my boot onto his head and watched him drown in the blood of all his victims. His death wouldn't make the world a safer place, but it would make it a saner one.

Then Dez Skinn and his parachute appeared again. This time he had two naked blondes in his arms. He had no sense of direction and his size 12s booted me right into the pool of blood. Everything turned red, then I fell off the couch and woke up.

What a strange dream!

Then I looked at my newspaper: Yet another censorship crackdown on videos and computer games. All comics, mainstream and small press would likely be next.

What was left of the British comic industry (Fleetway, etc) was pretending to offer semi-anarchy which was, in reality, political correctness.

American comics with flimsy plots, pretty paper, and poor flair in artistry and writing, not to mention ever-escalating prices, borne high on ever-increasing hype.

Small press was exactly that — small. No clout!

I was also skint.

I looked out of the window at the moon.

This wasn't real-life. Nor was it a dream.

It was a living nightmare.

I CAN'T take it any more — it's driving me doolally! Put me out of my misery and tell me what the hell those Tom Puss and Jack and Jill books are about that Piet Koudenberg's been advertising for in your classifieds for years!

Considering he's willing to pay hot cash for them, these books must have that little extra-added frisson. So are they kids comics, sado-masochistic porn, or what?

Now's your chance to enhance the brains of the entire Comics International readership. Sock it to us, Big Dezzy. Woof! Woof!

Woof, woof? OK, Delboy, you asked. First off, there is no truth in the rumour that Piet Koudenberg does Tom Puss himself and has come up with a unique way to promote his own comics. Visually, the character is the Netherlands' answer to George Studdy's classic Bonzo. Created in 1938, the comic strip has run to over 150 different daily strips stories, in the Rupert-style with libretto text below each picture. Tom Poes (or Tom Puss) started as a plump and cuddly cat aimed at children but developed into an upright-walking more streamlined character as the stories evolved into parody and satire. The international popularity of Tom Puss (outside of Britain!) is such that both TV and movie cartoons have also been made. Happy now, Del? ...Big Dezzy

IN THE days before credits were placed on DC comics, how did letter writers know who to praise?

I can understand the gradual recognition of artists' styles, but how the hell did your average letterhack know whether John Broome, Gardner Fox or Bob Kanigher wrote their latest Flash?

My second question has probably cropped up many times. When storing valuable issues, to what extent is complete airtightness an important consideration? I ask this because most mylars don't enable sealing at the top, so it has to be assumed they can remain unsealed, as long as you follow all the basic rules, i.e. keep in cool/dry place, stack upright in proper boxes, etc.

Opinions seem to differ on the relative importance of exposure to oxygen. Indeed, in Paul Sassien's The Comic Book, he places great store on comics remaining airtight (using italics to stress this point). Others argue that complete sealing can result in unfortunate chemical reactions. Any chance of a definitive view?

Hardly definitive, but recalling my formative years as a research chemist, I'd be reluctant to seal anything airtight for too long.

Comics International invites you to submit your comics-related queries, both for your own enlightenment, and that of our general readership.

Short of vacuum-sealing, you're also closing into the bag who knows what. Ever looked at a British Rail sandwich?

Dampness soon becomes mould (the word foxing being used to describe those liver-spot effects you see on comic covers where mould had begun to take hold).

Contrary to what many believe, a dry environment doesn't hurt. In the UK, we have relatively high humidity so, while it isn't particularly hot, dampness is a big enemy. Paul Sassien, who has a vast collection himself and is very conscious of ageing (his comics, that is) considers the ideal way to store comics is: packed upright, very tight, in an acid-free box using backing boards every ten or so comics for support, definitely not in comic bags (mylars, mylites and such being the exception).

The main enemies of cheap pulp paper (which is 40% wood pulp derivative and 60% chemicals and additives) are heat, light and moisture from the air. Hence Sassien's airtight comment in The Comic Book.

When buying comic bags, be discerning. There's no point paying a large sum for a comic, then trying to save on the peripheral costs. You're better off not buying in the first place than trying to save money later.

Ernie Gerber's Photo-Journal Guide to Comics even discusses extending the life of a comic by having it immersed or sprayed with a deacidification compound, but adds that this will detract from the whiteness of the paper as a side effect gives the pages a yellow tint.

Whatever you choose, if you've spent good money on comics, be aware that they can begin browning in as little as five years, making your investment plummet. Ideal storage is in basements or attics, where there are no windows and the temperature is a cool constant. That alone should double their life-span.

As Paul Sassien sums it up, "Comics are no longer considered disposable ephemera, but if you don't look after your collection, that's what they will become... disposable."

DC writers of the '60s: far easier to answer. The letters columns revealed all. DC editor Julius (Julie) Schwartz was a leader in revealing authors' names. In the 1950s classic Strange Adventures, he credited writers (but not artists) on story splash pages. By the 1960s, he regularly mentioned the writers' names in letters columns.

I HAVE always liked western comics, some more than others. I especially like ones with art by Joe Maneely and John Severin as opposed to the photo-cover types.

I answered an ad in Comics International, offering Epic's Lieutenant Blueberry graphic novels 4 and 5 for £10. I thought this had to be a good buy as I think they were £8 each when published. And what a good buy they turned out to be. Beautiful art, lovely colouring and the stories were way in advance of usual sagas.

My question is: how many of the Blueberry adventures have been published in English?

As a second question, The Spirit is the only comic I have ever been a completist with. Now it looks like publishers Kitchen Sink (wait for it...) have pulled the plug again. I got up to issue ten on the early years of the Spirit title and then nothing. Have they stopped publishing it?

If they have it's a shame, because although the pre-war Spirits were interesting, I was looking forward to the war years when Eisner went into the forces and other artists like Jack Cole and Lou Fine had to do the chores on the series.

The Spirit: no word on any new issues, Ray. It's amazing when you consider how many times the Sunday newspaper strip has been reprinted that, to the best of my knowledge, the war years have always been avoided.

For completists, let's risk a stab at a checklist:

- The Spirit 1-22 1944-50 Quality
- The Spirit 1-5 1952 Fiction House, mostly Eisner except #1
- The Spirit 11 & 12 1W/Super reprints of 1950s Quality, 1963
- The Spirit Australian series, 1950s b&w. No idea how many, I've only got #4.
- The Spirit 1-2 1966-67 Harvey 25c giants, includes new material
- The Spirit 1-2 1973 Kitchen Sink underground comic, b&w
- Daily Spirit 1-4 1973 Real Free Press, Amsterdam b&w landscape
- The Spirit Magazine 1-16 + Special 1 1974-76 Warren b&w magazine
- Will Eisner's Spirit Casebook oneshot paperback Tempo 1976
- The Spirit Magazine 17-41 1977-1983 Kitchen Sink
- Spirit Dailies 1-4 1980 Ken Pierce Books b&w bagged sections
- The Spirit 1-87 1983-92

Kitchen Sink comic. 1-11 in colour
● Spirit: The Origin Years 1-10 (?) 1992-1994 Kitchen Sink b&w
● Will Eisner's 3-D Classics featuring The Spirit 1 1985 Kitchen Sink

Of course, the character also appeared in other titles, notably in most issues of Police Comics from #11-102 (1942-1951), again reprinting the Sunday strips. Warren's magazine featured Wally Wood's excellent 1950s strips in issues 21-23, reprinted again in #85-87 of the Kitchen Sink series. But Dennis Kitchen skipped the 1943-45 non-Eisner strips for his 87 issue series, starting with Eisner's post-war return, and then went back to the beginning with The Origin Years. Maybe in time...

Let's answer your westerns point, but first an aside: Hardly anybody seems to remember Joe Maneely. An Atlas/Marvel mainstay of the 1950s, his art can be found in various western titles (notably Ringo Kid 1-5 1954-55) or in 1955-56's 5-issue Black Knight title, partially reprinted in the 1960s Fantasy Masterpieces-Marvel Superheroes title (#10-19 excluding 17). On a fortunate occasion when I was having a drink with the late Jack Kirby, I was pleased to discover that Kirby had also been a big fan of Maneely and he felt that, were it not for Joe's untimely death, he could have been one of the greats of the 1960s Marvel revival.

Severin's western work is most available in the 1950s Prize Comics Western where he occasionally teamed up with his Mad partner, Will Elder, on the lead strip American Eagle.

Moebius used his real name of Jean Giraud on Lt Blueberry. It was only when he moved across to fantasy and science fiction art that he coined the Moebius name, to differentiate the two styles (and avoid conflict for rival publishers).

Whenever his Blueberry strip is mentioned, I have to hold back a feeling of embarrassment. I was staying with Metal Hurlant editor Jean-Pierre Dionnet in Paris in the mid-1970s when the first French comics/sf convention was held in Metz. J-P had an invite for himself and his wife, but as she didn't want to make the long car journey, he gave me her ticket (and spent the weekend introducing me as his "Engleesh wife"). J-P fell asleep in the back of the car within minutes, leaving me alone in the front with a total stranger driving.

Attempting to make conversation, I commented (in broken French) on a couple of toy soldiers on the dashboard, asking the driver if he played war games. He told me (in marginally better English than my French) that they were reference. "For what?" I asked. "For a comic I do called Blueberry," he replied.

Thanks for the non-introduction, Jean-Pierre!

Back to the main plot: Following the popular reprinting of Moebius's Metal Hurlant work in America's Heavy Metal, publishers began looking for more of the artist's work.

Risking another aside which tidily links my digressions together, there's a great scene for comic fans in the new Tony Scott nuclear sub movie Crimson Tide with Gene Hackman and Denzel Washington. A fight breaks out between two sailors... because one dares say that Moebius's version of the Silver Surfer is better than Jack Kirby's!

However, Marvel/Epic published ten Blueberry graphic novels in English between 1989 and 1993 with translations (not scripts, ignore the price guide) by Jean Marc Lofficier. Titan did UK editions of the first two, while California's Graphitti Editions produced limited deluxe hardcover versions of four in 1989-1990. While one was non-Blueberry, two of them compiled Epic's first six Blueberry editions while the fourth combined Epic's Blueberry 1 and 2. Cover priced $45.95, they also included new material.

Don't you find it weird though... Americans buying a Frenchman's version of their own heritage stylistically based on Italian films!

RE: Land of the Giants in the Q&A section of Comics International 61. A fully painted strip by the masterful Gerry Haylock — probably best known for his Doctor Who strips — ran in the 34 issues of Joe 90, between January 18 and September 6, 1969.

The strip then transferred to TV21 & Joe 90, where it ran for 54 issues (September 27 1969 to October 3 1970).

Gerry Haylock was artist for the majority of the run, but the last 14 episodes are by someone else.

There were also appearances in Joe 90: Top Secret Annual 1969 and TV 21 Annual 1971 and 1972.

World Distributors issued their own Land of the Giants annual in 1969-70 and a Land of the Giants Television Story Book was published by PBS in 1969.

Hope that's of some use to Gary Stephenson.

IN WHICH issue of Ripley's Believe It or Not! does the story about Springheel Jack appear? I bought a batch of these comics from Ripley's "Museum" in Blackpool, in the early Seventies, but have since lost them.

Many images from these comics have stayed in my mind, but this is the only name I can recall. If memory serves, this manic jumping idiot hailed from Everton, which as a staunch Liverpool supporter, at the time, might explain why the name has stuck.

On a recent edition of Channel 4's quick-fire quiz show, Fifteen to One, there was a contestant called Fabio Barbieri. Is this the same FPB from your reviews column? If so, don't ask him how he got on.

Yes, it was our very own FPB (not that he's mentioned it). Ripley's Believe It or Not ran 94 issues as a 1967-1980 Gold Key title, but I couldn't tell you which issue you need. Any collectors care to help?

IN RESPONSE to Gordon Smith's letter in the Q&A section about the Bacchus index: I've always thought it unseemly for an artist to have too good a memory for all the places he's ever appeared. It's like remembering every time you made a complete idiot of yourself in public or like remembering every compliment you ever received.

Neither is it likely to make good dinner table conversation.

However, I just rummaged through my files to help Chris Staros (of PO Box 1282, Marietta, GA 30061 1282, USA) compile a fairly complete Campbell bibliography for his non-profit fanzine The Staros Report ($4.95).

Enjoying Comics International heaps — hope Frank [Plowright] survives his Knockabout parachute jump. When I saw him in San Diego, he looked a bit soft round the edges from all that good living!

COULD you tell me if A1 #6b was ever published by Atomika as I've never seen it advertised.

Could the material commissioned have found its way into the subsequent US Epic series?

No. A1 #6b was never published. All the material for the A1 Bikini Confidential which followed #6a was especially commissioned. Marvel's US series also ran especially commissioned work.

Co-editor/co-publisher Garry Leach provides the full answer for you, "The market was changing pretty rapidly, and I felt there was less room for an anthology-type magazine at that time. But we knew from past experience that sex sells so we did the Bikini Confidential as a summer spin-off."

While Garry now spends most of his time producing advertising art, you'll find his ex-partner Dave Elliot at work on Penthouse's Omni Comics. Dez Skinn/Editor

Back issue comic books are considered by many to be a high-yield low-risk investment. With this awareness, few new comics are genuinely scarce, although low print run launches and key issues introducing new characters who later become popular do keep the interest peaked. With their ever-diminishing quantity, older issues continue to rise, while speculation continues over current trends. As a guide, Comics Economics produces charts compiling current market favourites from US trade titles. Compiled by Phil Hall

COLLECTABILITY of comics can be determined by a myriad mix including nostalgia, hero-worship/escapism, violence and fantasy sex. But a key factor for comic fans is potential value — above and beyond the quality of story-telling or art. The "share value" on comics can be increased by any of the above factors (with big-gun violence having recently been eclipsed by the sexual fantasies of "hot babes" comics).

But throughout trends, from content to packaging gimmicks, investment remains king of the collecting market. Key issues, featuring first appearances of characters (or creators), continue to be the most sought-after prizes. In fact, rarity dominates to the point where, ironically, most of the following are considered too valuable to be read. Fortunately, almost all of them have been reprinted.

The collapse of the speculator market led to the bulk of recent back issues dropping in price. But, despite publishers disassociating current editions from the past to attract new readers, the demand for pre-1970 comics continues to grow, especially for scarce high grade copies and low grade reading copies, with mid-grade (VG to FN+) being slow movers.

Movers & Shakers top ten

The Movers & Shakers chart is an annual assessment of average prices being charged for the most valuable comics published since 1970. Now in its fifth year, the chart is compiled from all US and UK price guide prices to establish an average price for the books. Until this year, the Platinum edition of Todd McFarlane's Spider-Man 1 (1990) had remained the highest priced comic.

1 House of Secrets 92 (DC; 1st Swamp Thing) $400
2 Incredible Hulk 181 (Marvel; 1st Wolverine) $365

Top ten hot comics

Despite the speculators apparent disappearance from the comics industry in search of new trends, there is still a market for hot new comics. The latest trend of "hot babe" comics has stimulated back issue sales on a number of independent titles. While film and TV spin-off comics have always had a short term appeal for comic fans, the current interest in The X-Files perpetuates this speculative aspect. In recent years, it has been the low print run independent titles which have made the most impact. The following chart features the hottest recent comics.

1 Shi: The Way of the Warrior 1	Crusade
2 Lady Death II: Heaven & Hell 1	Chaos Comics
3 Gen-13 Vol 2 #1 (variant editions)	Image
4 The X-Files 1	Topps
5 Ash 1	Event

Top ten hot artists

The popularity of artists has always had a positive effect on sales and back issue values of comics. During the 1960s, Neal Adams and Jim Steranko dominated. In the Seventies, Barry (Windsor-) Smith, Bernie(e) Wrightson and Mike Kaluta were all considered "hot". In the '80s, Frank Miller, George Perez and John Byrne were among the fan-favourites.

Writers have rarely affected sales, although the 1980s British writers' invasion of US comics has helped balance things, and a chart will follow. This issue's chart of the current favourite artists is based on figures in five US comic magazines' surveys.

1 Humberto Ramos	Impulse, X-Nation
2 J. Scott Campbell	Gen-13
3 Todd McFarlane	Spawn
4 Joe Madureira	Uncanny X-Men
5 Mike Deodato Jr	Avengers, Glory, Thor
6 Greg Capullo	Spawn
7 William Tucci	Shi, the Way of the Warrior
8 Adam Pollina	X-Force
9 Steven Hughes	Lady Death, Evil Ernie
10 Chris Bachalo	Generation X, Death

3 Star Wars 1 (35c edition) (Marvel)	$360
4 Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles 1 (Mirage)	$330
5 X-Men 94 (Marvel; 1st new line-up)	$325
6 Giant Sized X-Men 1 (Marvel)	$325
7 Cerebus 1 (Aardvark/Vanaheim)	$300
8 Spider-Man 1 Platinum Edition (Marvel)	$275
9 Bone 1 (Cartoon Books)	$265
10 Amazing Spider-Man 129 (Marvel)	$260

REVIEWS

It is the intention of Comics International to help comics readers keep abreast of the entire range of titles currently available through direct sale specialist shops, good newsagents and mail order companies. Few retailers allow titles in stock to be read before choosing purchases; Comics International's reviews are designed to counter this and draw readers' attention to comics they might otherwise ignore. Naturally, this section should be of even greater benefit to readers who rely solely on mail order, as they can only judge the quality of a new title after purchase.

Review codes: General competitive performance of a title is measured on a scale of 1 to 10. A specific issue's quality, as measured against previous issues: <- -> to <+ +>.

Two ratings are used for the sake of detailed and fair coverage. The number following each review (on a scale of 1 to 10) is a quality comparison with similar titles currently being published. We make no attempt to compare Bone to X-Men, but review each within the context of its own genre.

The individual issue is also rated within the confines of its previous issues. Hence a comparatively dull title may get a low number but a high rating for the specific issue reviewed (ranging from <-> to <+ +> if there has been a notable improvement).

Reviews Editor: Sarah Bolesworth

Reviewing panel: Mo Baig (MB), Fabio P Barbleri (FPB), Simon Bowland (SiB), Grant S Doig (GSD), Steven Fox (SF), David Gentle (DG), James Gibbs (JG), Rol Hirst (RH), Richard J Johnston (RJ), Nigel Lowry (NL), Daniel Mokades (DM), Peter C Phillips (PCP), Ian R Salmon (IRS), Paul Snoddy (PS), Stuart Taylor (ST) and Paul Wood (PaW).

DARK HORSE

3x3 Eyes: Curse of the Gesu 1

by Takada

Yakumo returns to school, taking semi-human supernatural Pai with him. Her Sanjiyan personality (the third eye, which now maintains his undead soul) warns him that he cannot return to his old life. Then when he dies, his friends see his corpse re-animating! Welcome return for a strong manga series. (PaW) 8

Dirty Pair: Fatal But Not Serious 4

by Warren

<+ -> The entire system is being evacuated as the sun goes supernova. Yuri's clone gets motivated, and the Pair are in serious trouble when the Anti-DP virus really takes hold — everyone (including security) wants to lynch them. One down, one to go ... Adam Warren is enjoying his creation. So am I. (PaW) 8

<+ -> Starting from the savage cover, this title seems to have left its genre and character limitations behind. There is too much grief: the false Yuri's brutal agony, the mob's violence; the ghastly and serious attempt to hang one of the protagonists — these are no longer laughing matters. (FPB) 9

by Luke & Benefiel & Rodriguez

<-> It's Halloween and Ghost is drawn into a trap devised by her enemies, landing her in a serious situation. This title works best with a gothic influence, but the Superbeings throughout tend to dispel any such atmosphere. The artwork, though, is stunning. (NL) 7

Gunsmith Cats 6

by Sonoda

<+> Kidnapper Buskie grabs a hostage and escapes from Rally. Then, after discussing the merits of Czech handguns, she gets taken for a ride (literally) by her lawyer, who is trying to rescue his daughter from Buskie. A really enjoyable manga, with personal touches. (PaW) 8

Star Wars: Empire's End 1

by Veitch & Baikie

Although Luke Skywalker and the few remaining Jedi are resigned to protecting Princess Leia's children, they are planning to face the might of the Emperor one last time in an effort to restore peace in the galaxy — something Luke is convinced he can do. Well-written with some brilliant touches from Jim Baikie. (SiB) 7

DC COMICS

Abyss: Hell's Sentinel

by Peterson & Jimenez + Stokes + various

An Underworld Unleashed special. Original Green Lantern Alan Scott is recruiting some friends to help in a bid to save the life of his estranged wife, who has sold her soul to Neron in exchange for a second shot at happiness... It's a brilliant romp through Hell with some unsurpassable visuals from the magnificent Phil Jimenez. (SiB) 9

Adventures of Superman 530

by Kesel & Immonen & Marzan Jr

<+ -> Superboy takes on Alpha Centurion, convinced that he is really the Cyborg in disguise. The Cyborg is on the planet, but is not necessarily disguised as Alphie. Meanwhile, Superman's landing himself in more and more trouble. As ever, a good script, with some gorgeous pencils from Stuart Immonen. (SiB) 8

<+> Maggie Sawyer and her special crimes unit take on the new, improved Hellgrammite as Underworld Unleashed and The Trial of Superman overlap. This seems to work remarkably well, on all levels. (PCP) 8

by Moench & Jones + Beatty

<-> In a sequel to the events in the Year One annual, Jonathan Crane, aka The Scarecrow, exacts revenge on his high-school tormentors. Like so many other Scarecrow tales before it, this story fails to tap the character's true potential. This guy is the self-proclaimed Master of Fear, so how about having him do something scary? The fear gas gimmick is okay, but has been used too often. But although the book is well-produced, I cannot help but feel that more effort should have been made to raise this tale from its plodding predictability. (ST) 6

Batman 525

by Moench & Jones + Beatty

<+> The Underworld's unleashing continues with the introduction of the newly attired Mr Freeze. Of the many Batman villains, Mr Freeze has always been considered to be something of a spoof villain (probably his own fault, after all, he did initially call himself Mr Zero). The status quo has been shifted in this deeply sinister tale that establishes Mr Freeze as a calculated criminal. To enhance your reading experience, imagine Mr Freeze played by Patrick Stewart, and turn the heating off. (ST) 8

Batman: Shadow of the Bat 44

by Grant & Kitson + R. McCarthy

<-> What on earth happened here? When I opened this issue I had to double check that Barry Kitson was actually the artist — what a complete and utter mess! Rumour has it that because of a death in the family, Kitson's regular inker could not meet the deadline. So, some wise guy thought it would be a bright idea to take Kitson's thumbnail sketches and blow them up full-size. If the rumours are true, a major company like DC to showing so little regard for its creators and consumers is embarrassing. It is difficult to fairly assess Alan Grant's writing, the book is so difficult to read. It is only because the creators may not be at fault that I have bothered to give this book any score at all. (ST) 1

Detective Comics 692

by Dixon & Johnson + Hanna

<+ -> There's a new Spellbinder in town — she's beautiful but deadly, and she's got Batman and Robin right where she wants them. Stopping her doing what she wants with them requires a unique method, in a great story from Chuck Dixon and brilliant-as-ever penciller Stewart Staz Johnson! (SiB) 9

<+> The conclusion of the Spellbinder two-part story stretches credibility and credibility — particularly in how Batman overcomes Spellbinder's illusionary powers. Visually, however, this issue is stunning. (PCP) 6

by DeHaven & Smith

Robin Smith's artwork is so distinctive I keep expecting the Bogie Man to appear in every panel.

But this detective mystery is a lot deeper, as entrenched in America's history as it is the harsh realities of modern living. The first chapter establishes the characters and keeps the reader hooked for more revelations. (RJ) 9

Green Lantern 69

by Marz & Pelletier + Tanghal

<+ -> GL took on the might of Neron and lost, and now it's up to his girlfriend, Donna Troy, to patch him up and send him on his way again for round two! Writer Ron Marz gets the honours, and he's supported by beautiful art and some vibrant, lyrical colour. (SiB) 9

Hellblazer 96

by Jenkins & Phillips + Hollingsworth; Vertigo

<+ +> I owe Paul Jenkins a huge apology. With this issue, he stamps his signature firmly on the book, eradicating nearly all Constantine's past history and starting afresh. The writing here is his best to date, with spot-on dialogue and characterisation. Phillips and Hollingsworth, as usual, produce vivid complementary art. (IRS) 9

The Horrorist 1

by Delano & Lloyd

Jamie Delano and David Lloyd produce possibly their best work yet in a tale of Constantine's obsession with a woman burdened with the world's horrors. The sparse, poetic script and washed-out watercolour art combine to create a piece of work that is bleak, brutal, haunting and quite, quite brilliant. (IRS) 10

A woman of mystery and evil, the Horrorist makes her way across America, bringing death and pain to all who cross her path. After his excursions to Hell, she's Constantine's kind of woman. Jamie Delano's finest piece of work for a good while, and a welcome return for David Lloyd with some gorgeous, dynamic painted art. (SiB) 8

by Waid & Ramos + Faucher

<+ -> In the absence of the captured Max, Bart (incredibly) is bored! This soon changes when cousin XS shows up from the 30th century. More excitement and laughs from this outstanding creative team. (MB) 8

<+> Bart's cousin, XS, drops in from the 30th century, and this leads to a hilarious day of Bart trying to educate her with 20th-century customs and language. Writer Mark Waid is as good as ever, while artist Humberto Ramos' quirky art showcases the talent that will be missed when he leaves. (SiB) 8

<+ +> XS, Bart's cousin from the future, arrives in Manchester. Everything then proceeds to go wrong, with XS not realising he has a secret identity and Savitar going on the attack. This is the best issue of the title in a while. Everyone is back on form, at last. (GSD) 8

<+> Cousins XS and Impulse meet for the first time in a laugh a second prequel to the Flash — Dead Heat chapter. Sheer stuff. (PCP) 9

The Invisibles 15*by Morrison & Thompson; Vertigo*

<-> The Sheman trilogy concludes with a twist ensuring the death we expect might not be the one that actually happens. This book appears to be aiming for an accessible approach — with more action — without becoming less thoughtful or insightful. Well, if that's what it takes to keep it afloat... (IRS) 8

<+> Vive la difference? A journey through uncertain and certain genders, with Grant Morrison's trademarked surreal nastiness permeating the book, and a wonderfully choreographed fight-scene straight from the files of Quentin Tarantino. Jill Thompson's art in this edition is surprisingly vivid. (RJJ) 9

Legion of Superheroes 75*by Peyer & McCraw & Moder & Boyd*

<+> An Underworld Unleashed tie-in: The return of a more vicious Chronos, and a pivot that brings XS into Flash/Impulse continuity. The Lee Moder/Ron Boyd visuals get better with each issue. (PCP) 8

<-> While lost in the time-stream, XS is observed by the (surprise, surprise) Neron-enhanced Chronos. After rescuing her, he attempts to steal the Legion's time-travel equipment. The plot is slightly muddled, but Lee Moder's art is as good as ever. The only annoying point is the book's current habit of re-introducing characters then ignoring them — first Alchemist, then Sunboy, and now Valor. (GSD) 8

Power of Shazam 9*by Ordway & Kraus & Manley*

<-> The Marvels face a triumvirate of evil as Captain Nazi, Black Adam and Madame Libertine take advantage of their reduced common powers. A busy issue, as the many plot strands begin to intermingle, but that can be forgiven when the series is viewed as a whole. This book has direction — and how many superhero comics have, these days? The art team continue their fine work. (SF) 7

Power of Shazam 10*by Ordway & Kraus & Manley*

<+> Quite simply brilliant! Underneath a sinister, imposing cover lies an extremely well-paced and exciting story. While Captain Marvel is busy with the other DC superheroes in the Underworld Unleashed crossover, Mary Marvel goes in search of the wizard Shazam. The highlights (excluding the appearance of Tawky Tawny) are the origin of Shazam and the gorgeous artwork by writer Jerry Ordway. (ST) 9

Preacher 9*by Ennis & Dillon; Vertigo*

<-> It's flashback time as we find out about Jesse's parents and childhood. Garth Ennis keeps the whole thing moving with his usual skill, and Steve Dillon's art is just superb. After this issue, Jesse's

Gran'ma is easily the most evil woman in the business. (PS) 9

<+> Tied to a chair next to Tulip, Jesse begins to tell of his parents and his early life at Angelville. What we have here is some good character development and explanation of Jesse's past — what makes him tick. Very well-written, it's an engrossing read. (PaW) 9

<+> A flashback to Jesse Custer's early life surrounded by the world's most dysfunctional family. Very little in the way of the supernatural here, just Garth Ennis and Steve Dillon telling a damn fine, utterly horrific story of a warped upbringing. Sheer genius! (IRS) 10

<+> The irreverent humour is temporarily jettisoned, making the tale of Jesse's childhood all the more harrowing as we learn his family history and how he suffered. The callousness he has experienced and his difficulty in relating the tale make this a heart-wrenching but compulsive read. (NL) 8

Primal Force 14*by Seagle & Hall & Kaalberg & Choles & Hillsman*

Robin 22*by Dixon & Wieringo & Woch*

<+> Tim has gone undercover at a summer ninja camp where it becomes obvious that, as Robin, he needs few lessons in the martial arts. Nice plotting and dialogue from Chuck Dixon, but Mike Wieringo's art is not a patch on his work on The Flash. (SF) 6

Robin 23*by Dixon & Lopresti & Woch*

<+> Robin tries to prevent Killer Moth — now transformed by Neron — killing any more people. Meanwhile, as Tim Drake, he prepares to see off his girlfriend, Ariana — her parents having been forced out of their home. Cue a timely Bruce "Moneybags" Wayne intervention. Sound art, but the strength of this title lies in the writer Chuck Dixon's characters. (SiB) 8

Shade 66*by Milligan & Case & Tolagson; Vertigo*

<-> Shade's search for The Object of Objects continues in the form of a gothic horror-tale set in the depths of a swamp. Richard Case's art improves with each issue but, unusually for this title, the writing is disappointing — Pete Milligan's script is not really suited to the setting. (IRS) 6

Showcase '95 #12*by Claremont & Robinson & Jimenez & Davis & various*

Phil Jimenez produces some excellent artwork in this issue's lead story, in which Supergirl finds herself a new place to call her own when she saves the town of Charlotte from a gruesome monster. Then there's a Shade strip, tying in with Starman, from James Robinson. Chris Claremont and Alan Davis cap it with a superb Sovereign Seven one-off. (SiB) 7

Sovereign Seven 6*by Claremont & Turner & Moore*

<+> A talking spider, named Charlotte, is just one of the oddities in what proves the best issue so far. Chris Claremont gives us a much-needed breather as the Sovereigns adjust to life in Crossroads, and Dwayne Turner provides his tightest artwork so far. (PS) 8

Sovereign Seven Annual 1*by Claremont & Johnson & Blyberg & Garvey*

Although this issue feels a little rushed due to a superfluous Lobo subplot, it does provide welcome background on the team and explains many events in the regular series. Jeff Johnson's art is impressive, if a little inconsistent. (PS) 8

Starman 14*by Robinson & Harris & various*

<+> The Sins of the Child storyline continues, this time showcasing the O'Dare clan. Apart from the cover, Jack/Starman is absent from this issue. Each segment of the story is drawn by a different artist, the best of whom are Stuart Immonen, Tony Harris, Amanda Conner and Gary Erskine. The artist-jam method is often adopted to alleviate deadline pressures, but is rarely as effective as this. (ST) 9

<-> The art here (by eight pencillers and inkers) varies between good and nondescript, but writer James Robinson adroitly shows the escalating chaos in Opal City through the experiences of the O'Dare family. A very well-written issue. (MB) 7

<+> The Sins of the Child offers another perspective on the same day covered in the last two issues: This time it is that of Opal City's people. Thoroughly superior storytelling from James Robinson, with a well-chosen art ensemble. (IRS) 9

<-> The latest Sins of the Child chapter focuses on one of the story's main themes, heroism, through a development and introduction of new characters in the O'Dare family. James Robinson continues to excel, but the guest pencillers are inconsistent. (GSD) 8

<-> The title's lead character is absent as we focus on the O'Dares, the cop family who have stood alongside Starman for decades. Essentially a collection of vignettes — we do learn a little more of the O'Dares — but it's an unusually quick read in which the seven pencillers' work gels surprisingly well. (NL) 7

Superman 107*by Jurgens & Frenz & Rubinstein*

<+> Having escaped the kangaroo court where he was on trial for his life, Supes battles to save his new friend Mope, but in order to do so he must strike a deal with the eerie Tolos... And then the Cyborg returns! Good script, and Ron Frenz's pencils are superb! (SiB) 8

Superman: Man of Tomorrow 3*by Stern & Grummett & Breeding*

Swamp Thing 160*by Millar & Hester & DeMulder; Vertigo*

<-> Mark Millar begins another story arc as old characters return to the Vertigo universe — one of whom has never been here before, another very familiar. A nice insight into the minds of the now more powerful elemental set, along with a look at a much older, retired hero. (IRS) 8

Underworld Unleashed: Patterns of Fear 1*by Stern & Williams & Lanning*

A disappointing encounter between Oracle and Neron, this issue is used as an opportunity to reproduce the extracts from her files (all text) that can just as easily be gleaned from various trading cards. (PCP) 3

Wonder Woman 104*by Byrne*

<+> Thankfully John Byrne resolves the Darkseid story quickly and concentrates on what Diana will do now her mother has left Themyscira. Even the art improves, as Byrne demonstrates that he was a good choice for this title. (PS) 8

<+> If Paradise Island was currently advertised as a holiday resort, it would probably be prosecutable under trading standards law. Following the discovery that the Gods of Apokolips and New Genesis are linked with Wonder Women's Olympian deities, Darkseid's destructive forces rain down on the Amazons. As a whole, John Byrne's first Wonder Woman story arc was entertaining, but lacked the necessary depth and substance to stretch over four episodes. (ST) 8

IMAGE COMICSAstro City 3by Busiek & Anderson & Ross*

<+> Jack-in-the-Box stalks Astro City, ridding the area of criminals wherever he meets them. Nobody has since his face until Andrew Eisenstein, a character of questionable ethics, witnesses Jack changing into his civvies... From there on he's convinced that Jack, in order to protect his identity, will kill him. This is an excellent, gripping tale, with some bold and beautiful artwork. (SiB) 10

<+> Another view of Kurt Busiek's creator-owned universe. A petty crook stumbles on the true identity of Jack-in-the-Box — a hero with obvious antecedents in The Creeper and Spider-Man. Busiek is playing with superhero archetypes here and doing it brilliantly, bringing a fresh approach to some tired old ideas. Marvellous! (IRS) 9

Gen 13 #5

by Choi & Campbell + Garner

<+> As Caitlin tries to rescue her captivated Gen 13 team, Grunge thinks he is in for a bit of the kinky stuff until he realises that in fact he's about to be killed. Brandon Choi writes a fine, quirky script, but Scott Campbell steals the show with some sophisticated pencils. (SiB) 8

Glory/Avengelyne 1

by Liefeld w/Stephenson
+ Miki + various

The premise: Glory meets Avengelyne, they fight each other and then their intended villainous target, defeating him easily; then it's down to a quick snog with each other at the end. It's a bad plot, a dire script and Rob Liefeld's artwork is empty and sketchy — the whole thing's an excuse for him to draw unrealistic, semi-naked women. Get a life, Rob! (SiB) 2

Groo 11

by Aragones w/Evanier

<+> Groo gets involved with a group of gamblers and in his usual bungling manner spreads mayhem and despair wherever he sets foot. But, as he says this issue, he doesn't mean it! After all these years, Groo is still as hilarious as ever, and the artwork is so vibrant and full of life it will be a sad day (next month) when the last issue arrives. (SiB) 9

The Maxx 19

by Kieth & Messner
Loeb + Sinclair

<+> As the Leopard Queen and our hero try to avoid being crushed, Mr Gone tells Julie about the nice, all-American family life from which she emerged a wreck. There never was a series like this, nor can anyone imitate it — it opens up a whole new world. (FPB) 10

<+> Mr Gone tells Julie a story she doesn't want to hear. Not an average Image book, but then again it never has been. The art and writing are both excellent. It's just a shame that consistently good comics inspire dull reviews. (DG) 9

by Liefeld + Stephenson
& Park + Mendoza

The ex-Youngblood heroine is accused of murder in a routine Fugitive scenario. Yet another title throwing anatomy out of the window — the poor girl on Rob Liefeld's cover looks as though she's suffering from backache! (PCP) 2

Savage Dragon 23

by Erik Larsen

<+> Trapped in a chimney, the Dragon's broken and battered body begins to heal itself. But sadly all his joints are broken, so they're healing crooked, leaving him twisted and disfigured. There's a great plot-twist, and some of Erik Larsen's best artwork to date makes for an all-round excellent issue. (SiB) 8

Violator vs Badrock 3

by Moore & Denham
+ Sibal + Miki

<+> At last this series takes a turn for the better, as Alan Moore injects some humour into the title with the appearance of Violator's brothers. Badrock's sassy banter goes against his previously established childlike mentality — but it's much more fun this way. Even Brian Denham produces less dodgy panels than in the last two issues. (RJJ) 7

Violator vs Badrock 4

by Moore & Denham
+ Sibal + Miki

<+> A superior ending to that in most issues of the series, with loose fight-scene artwork and the odd dodgy panel not detracting from some tight dialogue from Alan

Moore. But mayhem saves all — and hey, flossing with demons has got to hurt, right? (RJJ) 7

Wetworks 9

by Portacio + Takenaga
& Portacio + Regla + Williams

I'm confused by this comic. The Wetworks team, a military unit with enough power to overwhelm a medium-sized country, have decided to beat up some vampires. The art here is in typical Image style, and as an example of the imprint's line, it is very effective. As an example of clear storytelling, it is not. (DG) 5

WildC.A.T.S 23

by Moore & Benjamin
& Johnson + various

<-> This issue features stories about both teams — the original line-up, stranded in space, and the new team on Earth, struggling to get to grips with working as a unit. The Alan

Moore story is excellent, but the title is suffering from a lack of artistic direction — the two different pencillers in this issue, for instance, being of varying quality. (SiB) 6

various creators

Anthology of Halloween tales that is more laughable than spine-tingling. Even at its worsts, DC's House of Mystery was better than this. Contains six pages (wow) of Berni Wrightson layouts. (PCP) 2

Witchblade 1

by Wohl + Haberlin
& Turner + D-Tron

Cop Sara Pezzini gets super-powers. This title has an excellent script and knockout visuals, with even the customary butt and boobs shots seemingly not out of place. (PCP) 7

MARVEL COMICS

Scarlet Spider 2

by DeFalco & Bagley + Mahlstedt

Ben Reilly can't figure out which is trickiest, striking a deal with the Green Goblin, taking on the might of the mysterious Joystick, or keeping his relationship with Carrie Bradley on an even keel. It's good to see Tom DeFalco back on Spider-Man, but bad to see Mark Bagley reinstated as penciller, as his work is quite diabolical — anatomically incorrect, poorly laid-out and generally below par. (SiB) 4

Avengers 392by Harras + Kavanagh
& Wyman + Palmer

<- -> Tom Palmer tries hard, but even he cannot save M. C. Wyman's ugly pencils. The story is not much better, but at least The Crossing seems to be going somewhere at last, especially with the appearance of Mantis. (PS) 4

<+ -> The Crossing continues with some genuine surprises with the return of two long-absent characters. The writers are really on the ball, but the fill-in artist, M. C. Wyman, is at best average. (MB) 7

<- -> Mantis returns to the Avengers as the team struggles to overcome the shock of the recent deaths. Meanwhile, Tony Stark sinks lower still, and is told he must kill Crystal and Quicksilver's daughter, Luna! Great script, but dismal pencils from M. C. Wyman, which are saved only by Tom Palmer's masterful inks. (SiB) 5

by Loeb & Haynes + Green

<+> Cable and Domino return from the future, but stray off course and end up in Genosha, helping the Mr Sinister-backed resistance against the Sugarman-backed Magistrates. Jeff Loeb manages to make the previously boring location of Genosha interesting, and even the guest pencillers prove to be impressive. (GSD) 8

Captain Marvel 1

by Nicieza & Benes + Sellers

The original Captain Marvel's son, a very headstrong and angry young man, takes his father's name but is sick of living under his father's shadow. Sadly, that's all this book seems to be doing right now, but the writing does show some sense of direction and the art, while not as good as it was hyped up to be, could be worse. Fair start. (SiB) 5

Cutting Edge 1by Messner-Loebs & Medina
& Pelletier + Moncuse

A tie-in to the regular Hulk title, this title focuses on Bruce Banner's imprisonment in an army high-security prison, his encounter with the Ringmaster and his new, deadly illusions, which seem a little too real for comfort. Nicely written, and while both artists have contrasting styles they work well on their individual chapters. (SiB) 8

Daredevil 347by DeMatteis &
Wagner + Reinhold

<+> Marc DeMatteis is really excelling on this title now. Here we discover Sir's terrible secret and learn the true extent of Matt's identity crisis — there is no imposter except in Matt's tortured mind. The improving art team help make this an excellent issue. (MB) 8

<+ -> The yellow-costumed Daredevil is finally revealed to be Matt Murdock himself, but this is a psychologically confused Murdock, unaware of anything happening around him. DD is now firmly entrenched as a top-class book, with an excellent, powerful script and some atmospheric, lively art. (SiB) 9

Doctor Strange 84by DeMatteis &
Buckingham + Sutherland

<+> Doc Strange battles alcohol's temptations once again and then tries to regain trusty assistant Wong's friendship... but Wong is still bitter about the death of his lover, Imei. New writer J. M. DeMatteis mixes the mystical side of the title with an emotional, character-driven tone that works a treat, as does the Mark Buckingham/ Kev Sutherland artwork combo. (SiB) 8

Doom 2099AD 36

by Ellis & Pugh + Koblish

<+> On the run from Shield, Doom and Static Annie seek the help of an eccentric revolutionary. Another engrossing script by Warren Ellis, while the art is much improved on last month's. This really is a consistently good title. (MB) 8

<+> Doom has gone underground to rebuild the American revolution from the ground up, and this time he does not intend to be so lenient. The usual sterling work from Warren Ellis, aided by strong art, as he reinvents the title character and supporting cast. (IRS) 7

by Ellis & Jones + various

<+> After last month's drunken shenanigans, Warren Ellis delivers his most intense script yet for this title. Colossus, on discovering Kitty and Wisdom's relationship, almost kills the latter and is nearly crippled in return. Powerful stuff, with some very nice art from the superbly named Casey Jones. (MB) 8

<+ -> Excalibur has taken Generation X's place as best of the X-books, and is the closest you can get to perfection in a superhero comic without having the word Starman in the title. (GSD) 9

<+ -> Another excellent issue from Warren Ellis. He's got a wonderful feel for these characters, making them act realistically and showing the real consequences of their usual seemingly harmless battles. Art here is good, but not great. (IRS) 8

Exiles: Infinity 1by Kavanagh & Lashley
+ Wyman; Malibu Ultraverse

An all-new X-title — a first for Malibu — and apparently in the tradition of Generation X. Gen X has received much critical acclaim, but Exiles simply cannot measure up. The characters are more or less indistinguishable from one another, mere cypher-like vehicles for turgid dialogue. The artwork, by Rob Liefeld clone M. C. Wyman, is patchy and inconsistent throughout. Ironically, the inside back cover has an advert for the Strangedays film. Above the picture of an intense Ralph Fiennes, the headline reads: You Know You Want It. When it comes to The All-New Exiles, I beg to differ. (ST) 2

Fantastic Four 407

by DeFalco & Ryan + Bulanadi

Force Works 18by Abnett & Lanning
& Labat + Garcia

<-> Force Works' civilian members join in the fun as the team's memory problems get worse, as evidenced by their search for Vietnam — which they cannot remember existing. The writing is still good, but Labat's guest art is pretty weak. (PS) 7

<-> Moonraker reveals himself to be a messenger, and tells the Force Works team that the world they know is about to die. It's a rather bleak issue, though as well-written as ever. The artwork is not up to standard, but does not detract from the issue as a whole. (SiB) 7

Generation X #10

by Lobdell & Grummett + various

<+> Omega Red gets his revenge on Banshee and breaks up the party. Scott Lobdell is keeping up the standards, and I'm glad this book is kept mostly separate from the other mutant titles. Tom Grummett's art is good, if not quite up to Chris Bachalo's level. (PS) 9

<-> It's all going off — Mondo's orientation party, Banshee in a coma, Emplate shows up, an intriguing flashback cameo by Magneto and, as if that were not enough, the kids run into Omega Red! Strong scripting and decent art, despite the variety of inkers. (MB) 7

<-> Banshee is found dead in his own house, and the White Queen lies unconscious. Without their mentors, the Generation X team set out to track down the perps and bring them to justice. A fine plan, apart from the fact that it's Omega Red they're after. Tom Grummett is producing some excellent artwork. (SiB) 8

<+> The team's welcome party for Mondo is spoiled when Banshee is discovered, near death, in the kitchen. Scott Lobdell's character development is spot on, but I still find Tom Grummett's art annoying. The highlight of the issue is the flashback to Banshee's days as an Interpol agent and his encounter with his mysterious benefactor. (GSD) 6

Ghost Rider

by Kaminski + Wood & Daly

<+> The future Ghost Rider goes to visit his conformist father and television-addict Mother. Nice dialogue and okay art around a sagging plot. (DG) 6

Incredible Hulk 436

by David & Medina + Riggs

<+ +> Now this is more like it! Major Talbot captures Bruce as Omnibus kicks off his master plan. Thanks to the cracking script and fine art, this issue is the best in a while — the storyline looks like a good one. Great cover, too. (MB) 8

<+> Ghosts of the Future begins with Betty Banner stepping out for her morning paper and into the gun-sights of the US army. Angel Medina makes a very impressive debut on this title showing, within the space of a few panels, that he was born to draw the Hulk. (ST) 9

<+ +> Betty is kidnapped by an army under the leadership of her ex-husband's nephew, Matt, in a ploy to lure the Hulk into their clutches. Their plan? To make him mad and thus transform him into "puny Banner". Know what? It works! Writer Peter David recaptures former glory while artist Angel Medina's debut is simply stunning. (SiB) 9

<+> For the first time in ages a decent issue! Angel Medina turns in some great visuals (although too cartoony at times) and Peter David delivers a powerful threat to the Hulk's peaceful existence. Although I could easily have never looked at the Hulkbusters again, the new versions are impressive — and the leader's back, too. (NL) 7

Iron Man 322by Kavanagh &
Cheung + McKenna

<+> Avengers Mansion has been closed down; Bethany Cabe is missing — Tony Stark fears he's killed her — and the mysterious Door finally opens. This comic is looking better and better, and the arrival of stunning new penciller Jim Cheung bodes well. (SiB) 7

<+> Iron Man gets thrashed by Neut, and to make matters worse, the Avengers begin to turn against Stark. Well-scripted with attractive pencils from the highly promising Jimmy Cheung. This is another gripping episode in the so far excellent Crossing storyline. (MB) 7

The Last Avengers Story 2

by David & Olivetti

<+> The reluctant Hank Pym's motley band of Avengers make their final stand. Great painted art, but it is Peter David's outstanding writing that makes it work so well. This is in the same league as David's classic Future Imperfect, and therefore essential reading. (MB) 10

<+ -> A painting style, more like Simon Bisley than Alex Ross, captures the future Avengers' final battles. Storywise, it is a rip-off of Alan Moore's Last Superman story, but Peter David injects enough one-liners and plot twists to give these old Avengers a final sparkle. (RJ) 7

by Barr & Roberts

+ Amash; Malibu Ultraverse

<+ -> Lauren proves the theory that looks aren't everything when she takes on Coven in her debut as Mantra — she looks great, but makes a hash of it. Things get worse when she tries to sneak into somebody's house and winds up losing her clothes... Writer Mike Barr has done a fine job, and Dave Roberts' art is great. (SiB) 8

Night Man 1

by Englehart & Wildman + Baskerville; Malibu Ultraverse

As a result of a lifelong curse, the Night Man is now forced to eat human organs to survive. Steve Englehart has given the character a zest he didn't have before and made the book interesting once again; the excellent Andy Wildman artwork doesn't hurt, either. (SiB) 8

Professor X and the X-Men 2

by Schiller & Duursema + Akin

<+ -> The Vanisher rears his ugly head while — and this is arguably the stronger part of the story — the X-Men undergo a session in the Danger Room, which is full of all the wit and comedy of days gone by... The artwork looks a little smoother this month. (SiB) 6

Punisher 1

by Ostrander & Lyle + Ivy

Frank Castle, found guilty of killing Nick Fury, is sentenced to death by electric chair... It's all a cover-up, however, as Frank is not killed but merely stunned, leaving the world to think he's dead and him free to carry on with his work. But will he? An excellent debut, confidently written, with gorgeous artwork. (SiB) 9

Punisher 2

by Ostrander & Lyle + Ivy

<+ -> Don Geraci, the dying head of the Geraci crime family, asks Frank Castle to take over his role. However, Castle must first win the respect of the family, who all believe they should rule. And then there's the other Punisher who's killed the Judge responsible for sentencing Castle to the electric chair. This issue is, if anything, better than the first of the series. (SiB) 9

Scarlet Spider 2

by Mackie &

Romita Jr + Williamson

Doctor Octopus is back in town, and she — yes, she — means business! Spiderman wants to oppose her, but he's too busy trying to explain to the FBI that he's on their side... The story itself is pretty average, but the return of the excellent John Romita Jr on the art, is something to marvel at (no pun intended). (SiB) 7

Skrull Kill Krew 4

by Morrison + Millar & Yeowell + Ivy

<-> In which our wacky heroes battle Skrulls impersonating the FF before discovering an entire town populated by Skrulls. Enjoyable enough, but shouldn't we have had by now some background on the characters (especially Ryder), rather than more fight scenes? (MB) 6

Spider-Man & Batman

by DeMatteis & Bagley + Hanna + Farmer; DC crossover

A scientist devises a drug to tame Carnage and the Joker. It doesn't work. This is an excellent team-up issue, in which Spidey acknowledges the fact that Bats is the bigger "living legend". (PCP) 9

A wasted opportunity, if ever I saw one. Too much time is spent on the obvious similarities between the heroes and their tragic pasts — flashbacks we've all seen a million times before. The choice of villains could have been better — however hot Carnage might be, he's a one-dimensional foe at best, and in a different class entirely to the Joker.

With Spidey's classic rogue's gallery whittled down these days there might not have been much to choose from, but as this tale is out of continuity, why not splash out on a Green Goblin or Dr Octopus? The fact that Batman is severely outmatched by Carnage only makes matters worse, and what could have been an unmissable face-off between the kings of wisecrack (Spidey and the Joker) is fudged by Spidey played straight and "sickened" by the Joker's evil. My two favourite heroes, together at last. Nothing can take away the childlike thrill of seeing them together (even if the interaction between them is sparse). There are moments — such as the Joker comparing himself to Oscar Wilde and Carnage to David Hasselhoff — but they are few and far between. There could have been so much more. A sequel is, of course, inevitable. (RH) 5

by Ellis & Pacheco + Smith

<+ -> Ch'od discovers the origins and mission of the Uncreated; but what to do with their new-found knowledge? With an excellent script and dazzling artwork, this is proving to be an unusual and highly enjoyable series. (MB) 8

<-> The Starjammers are trapped in a nebula. There, they find some wreckage which yields useful information on The Uncreated.

Carlos Pacheco is a star in the making, and Warren Ellis is his usual great self. (GSD) 8

by Ellis & Deodato Jr

<+> Thor sleeps with the Enchantress and finally realises why he is dying — that which gives him life has forgotten he exists. Writer Warren Ellis has transformed this title with some excellent, thoughtful writing, ably supported by artist Mike Deodato's finest artwork and some rich colouring. (SiB) 10

<-> Curzon gets closer to solving the puzzle of the World-Ash, while the randy Enchantress finally has her way with Thor. Featuring a fascinating investigation of Norse mythology, this issue is a superbly written and drawn. (MB) 8

<+> At last Thor's book is good again. Saved by the Enchantress, Thor displays his gratitude while crabby British cop Curzon unravels the story behind Thor's ill health. Warren Ellis has successfully dragged the book up to date, and Mike Deodato provides his best art for ages — far better than his Avengers work. (NL) 8

by Ellis & Butler + Branch; Malibu Ultraverse

As writer Warren Ellis joins the crew, the government provides the Ultras with a new HQ and some unwelcome support staff. Unfortunately, penciller Steven Butler comes on board, too, and all he produces here is shoddy, unsophisticated artwork. At least Ellis introduces a new angle and some interesting plot lines. (SiB) 5

Ultraforce (now led by Black Knight) arrive at their new HQ while a wave of bombings rocks New York. A good script sets up some interesting scenarios, while Steven Butler's art looks promising. (MB) 7

Warren Ellis makes his debut on this book (after plotting Infinity) by giving the team a new, government-backed authority and a devilish foe. Some of the concepts here are turning into Warren Ellis clichés, but he writes as well as ever, turning in a very solid superhero tale backed by strong visuals. (IRS) 7

Uncanny X-Men '95

by Kavanagh & Hitch + McLeod

What is the point of having double-sized specials if Marvel has no real stories with which to fill them? The X-Men and Husk go up against an anti-mutant cult, but it's pretty dull. Bryan Hitch livens it up a bit, though, with some nice art. (PS) 5

Cannonball, Husk, Wolverine, Bishop and Storm take the spotlight in this year's retitled Uncanny X-Men Annual. The story itself starts off quite well, but the end lets it down. For the high cover-price, you might expect more than half a story. Only Bryan Hitch's splendid pencils are worth a mention — initially and unfairly dismissed as a cheap Alan Davis clone, his distinctive style really shines in this book. (ST) 7

Untold Tales of Spider-Man 4

by Busiek & Olliffe + Vey + Eklund

<+> NASA is considering using

Spidey as an astronaut, and that's going to steal the fame away from J. Jonah Jameson's son — so JJJ sets out to stop it happening. Kurt Busiek takes us back to the cloneless days and he's supported by some clear yet visually dynamic artwork. (SiB) 9

Wolverine 96

by Hama & Kubert + Green + Lima

<+> Wolverine and company go camping, and Cyber has a very nasty surprise awaiting him. Larry Hama's script is amusing and, in places, intriguing — especially at the end. The pencils are sharp, although Andy Kubert's work seems hampered by the unnecessary Lima. (DM) 8

<-> Logan and friends go trekking while Genesis separates Cyber from his adamantium skin. Both writing and art are impressive in this issue. But why has Logan's best villain been killed off? (MB) 7

by Loeb & Dodson + various

<-> The team are picked off, one by one, by Holocaust and Sebastian Shaw. Good work from Jeph Loeb again, and although Dodson is not as good as Adam Pollina, the art is still decent. (PS) 7

<-> Jeph Loeb's script is still strong but Dodson's guest pencils lack the energy and aggression of the talented Adam Pollina. (DM) 7

<-> Sebastian Shaw died years ago in X-Factor but, since this is comics, he returns here with new ally Holocaust and captures most of X-Force. Both script and art are a bit of a letdown compared to the excellent last few issues. (MB) 6

<+> After a few rough months, the title is back on track and Dodson (like Carlos Pacheco) gives us more proof he should get the regular art job, instead of sub-standard artists like Steve Epting. (GSD) 7

X-Man 10

by Ostrander & Skroce + Jones + Duursema

<+> Although Steve Skroce suddenly seems incapable of pencilling an entire issue, this is still a good read. Xavier attempts to contact Nate on the astral plane and receives a sound thrashing for his troubles. The arrival of John Ostrander as writer promises much for this title's future. (MB) 7

<+> Thinking Nate to be Stryfe, Professor X intercepts him in North Carolina. He explains to him that he is the leader of the X-Men but Nate attacks him — Magneto is the X-Men leader. The title feels as if it is moving at last, and Steve Skroce only needed a dep for a few pages this time. (GSD) 7

by Lobdell & Kubert + Smith + Delperdang

<-> More evidence of Scott Lobdell's inconsistency — this is a real disappointment compared to his Generation X work. The humour isn't there, and Dazzler's appearance is much too brief. Only Andy Kubert's art saves the book. (PS) 6

<-> Dazzler shows up to end the X-Babies romp in New York, and that's about it, really. Perhaps this and last issue should have been used to develop one of the numerous dangling plot-threads (Onslaught, Magneto, X-traitor, etc). Nice artwork is the best thing about this pointless story. (MB) 6

X-Men Archives: Captain Britain 4

by Moore & Davis

<+> Reading it today, a few things in this early Alan Moore/Alan Davis masterpiece don't quite work. In particular, Lord Mandragon — the "hanging judge" who spends most of this issue trying to execute Saturnyne — is too flat and melodramatic a villain. But the heart of it still beats as hotly as ever. (FPB) 9

X-Men Archives: Captain Britain 5

by Moore & Davis

<+> The reprints of the classic Captain Britain strips continue as the cataclysmic battle against the Fury comes perilously close to being stunning. Even the colours have picked up, matching the continued improvement in the script as it blends effectively with the visuals. (NL) 8

INDEPENDENTS

Apprentice to a God 3

by Kelleigh; Abalone Press

<-> This imaginative fantasy series follows the initiation of a horned orphan lad — which the boy spoils by falling for a priestess — by a supposed living god. The artwork is rather amateurish, and I wish Matthew Kelleigh could spring for a letterer. But nonetheless, this issue left me wanting more. (FPB) 6

Bart Simpson's Treehouse of Horror 1

by Allred + Robinson + Smith & Morrison + various; Bongo

The Simpsons' Halloween specials come to comics with three spooky tales from fêted creators Mike Allred, James Robinson and Jeff Smith. Sounds good, but the stories are surprisingly weak and the funny lines are few and far between. James Robinson's Bart People is the best of the bunch. (SF) 5

Feeling decidedly put out that I missed the great Simpsons mystery, Who Shot Mr Burns?, this book went a long way to making amends. For non-Simpsons fans, the Treehouse of Horror is the title of the annual Simpsons' Halloween television specials. These are usually parodies of modern horror movies, such as Coppola's Dracula, or tongue-in-cheek adaptations of literary classics, such as Edgar Allan Poe's poem, The Raven. The anthology's three tales are written by Mike (Madman) Allred, James (Starman) Robinson and Jeff (Bone) Smith. The highlight comes from James Robinson in his Cat People pastiche, Bart People. Apart from anything else, his witty takes on the Simpsons' support characters are spot on. (ST) 8

by Moretti & Chen + Rodriguez; Valiant

<-> Bloodshot's accomplice and lover, Jillian, has been saved by a transfusion of his blood, giving her Bloodshot's superpower-inducing nanites — which are now killing her. The story works well, supported with excellent Sean Chen/Jasen Rodriguez artwork. (SiB) 8

The Book of Ballads and Sagas 1

by McCrumb + Gaiman + Walton + Vess; Green Man Press

This collection of legends is in danger of seeming affected and twee. What saves it is the truly extraordinary drawing skills of Charles Vess, whose every page is a treasure-chest full of dramatic and poetic visual beauty. Gorgeous and often truly magical. (FPB) 6

Three re-told folk tales, all with art by Charles Vess. The surprise is that the lowlight is Neil Gaiman-scripted The False Knight of the Road. Charles Vess's art is excellent, showing him to be one of the best artists around today. (GSD) 8

Mythology would not be my usual choice, but in this case the comic is so good it doesn't matter, with quality writing from a variety of creators and very good art from Charles Vess. (DG) 9

by Stegelin; Knight Press

<-> Boondoggle is not too small a town to have its own rock venue — but what a venue! Fourth-rate bands with fifth-rate followers add up to another living-death day for the bored midwestern teenagers of this depressingly enjoyable humour series. (FPB) 6

Calvin and Hobbes Tenth Anniversary Book

by Watterson; Warner Books

This is a collection of Bill Watterson's favourite episodes of his great strip, many with comments and explanations — and it's these that make the book worth buying. With a long introduction detailing the strips' history, this provides some enlightening material from one of the best newsstrips creators. (NL) 9

Camping With Bigfoot

by Taylor; Slave Labor

Three cartoonists go camping in the wilds of North America, and don't enjoy it too much. They have, you see, taken their fears with them — and worse, their innate ability to screw up. Hilarious retelling of real-life events, with a slightly amateurish touch. (FPB) 6

Cerebus 199

by Sim & Gerhard; Aardvark Vanaheim

<+> Cerebus concludes his conversation with his creator, begging to be abandoned. It does look as though Dave Sim has actually said goodbye to the character, leaving him (as long promised) alone, unmourned and unloved. We were always promised 300 issues, but I really can't see anything past next issue. (IRS) 10

Creed 1by Kaniuga; Lightning Comics

An instant reaction to this book is to compare it with Spawn and The Maxx, and it certainly belongs with the Image-inspired stable of comics. For all that, it is quite engaging and has a long, if unchallenging, background to the story. Definitely a cool book. (RJ) 6

Dawn 2by Linsner; Sirius

<+> The Lord asks a favour of Dawn — go to Hell and get the halo back from his old lover, Lucifer, to separate the bridge between Heaven and Hell. I think I know what Joseph Linsner is trying to do here, and this is either one of the best books ever published or complete bollocks. (PaW) 9

<+> Joseph Linsner's incredibly ambitious story makes his supernatural heroine Dawn travel from Heaven to Hell, debating ethics with God and Satan. On the whole a brilliant and successful concept, but hurt by a certain excessive tidiness, a sense — despite the visionary content — that things are always clear and neat. (FPB) 9

Double Impact 4by Carralero & Jermain
+ Lyon; High Impact

Big guns and big women do not an entertaining comic make, especially when coupled with a paucity of plot/dialogue and fill-in artists who have not mastered anatomy. (PCP) 0

Dystopik Snomen 1by Haring Jr; Slave Labor

A series of strips promoting the lifestyle and use of Dystopik Snomen, whatever they are. I can't really explain them, but they seem to work. Go figure! (PaW) 7

A series of apparently unconnected strips that should be very entertaining but tend to leave the reader screaming "I don't understand". There's an Evan Dorkin influence, crossed with Dadaism, and a couple of good gags. Given time, it could be quite addictive. (RJ) 7

Eternal Warrior 48by Ostrander & Guice
+ Montano; Valiant

<-> Gilad, the Eternal Warrior, has seemingly been killed by a rather impressive sword being plunged into his chest, but after two days strung up on a wooden stake, he returns to life, healed again and eager to exact revenge on those who tried to take his life. It's a well-written story, as ever, but artist Jackson Guice is off form again with rigid, lifeless artwork. (SiB) 6

Exit 1by Kanan; Caliber

Karl loves Louise, who "just wants to be friends". He also knows that her father is having an affair, and can't bring himself to tell her. Then he steals a video camera from a female tealeaf, who wants it back. Calmly elaborate plotting, sensitive scripting, innovative storytelling, and gorgeous artwork. (FPB) 9

Femforce 87by Black & Gorby + Heike; AC

<+> The tenth anniversary special sees AC staff and the full Femforce roster visiting a theme park built in their honour, unaware it's controlled by the evil Dr Pretorious. That's the trouble with automated playgrounds! An enjoyable romp. (PCP) 8

F-III Bandit 5by Bang; Antarctic Press

<+> Two tribes are perpetually at war, but love crosses the divide between a young man from the Tail Tribe and a young woman from the Bug Tribe. Bang's art is still too crowded, and her stories seem to be a repeat of last issue. (PaW) 5

Gold Digger Vol 3by Perry; Antarctic Press

<-> Another four-issue collection — a set-up to pit the Were-Wolves against Were-Cheetah Cheetah, and a city involved in a super-villain crime-wave. This volume doesn't seem up to Fred Perry's usual high standards, with Crimesyndicate-X being the weakest. But GD 18 is still a gem. (PaW) 8

Gold Digger 25by Perry; Antarctic Press

<-> While her sisters celebrate Cheetah's engagement to Stripe, Brianna sets off to the supernatural prison to work off her frustration by taking pot-shots at the prisoners, unaware that someone else has plans for the same monsters. Not as funny as usual but still good stuff. (PaW) 8

Funnytime Features 7

by Tucci + Bihun + Drymon

Bill Tucci is a good guy! Why is Bill Tucci a good guy? Because he lent the pulling power of Shi to this little-known but wonderful superhero satire so the fanboys lured by her curves can go home laughing out loud. That's why Bill Tucci is a good guy. (FPB) 9 a future newspaper ravel and unravel. The book shows a diverse knowledge of the comics medium, using techniques developed by the likes of Will Eisner, Frank Frazetta and Steve Ditko. The detail and depth suggest this could run and run. (RJ) 8

Hilly Rose 2by Boyer; Astro Comics

Hilly Rose 3by Boyer; Astro Comics

<-> This issue focuses mostly on the bad guys — Sydney the Evil Incarnate Guy, the Bloodshedding Texas Gang, and The Stranger — showing that in the end, the main requirement to be a B.C. Boyer villain is a taste for endless silly talk. For example this issue's closing line: "Yes, Rose, it's true — I, an evildoer, have an origin". Gag, gag, gag! (FPB) 8

<-> Hilly "ace" space reporter Rose discovers that her father might be a crook. A science fiction comic with its tongue firmly in its cheek is only a good thing when done well. Fortunately, B.C. Boyer's stylised artwork and amusing script qualify as "a good thing". (DG) 8

by Bihun; Eerieweenie Comics

<+ -> Behind his bumbling incompetence, our fat hero really is a kindly sort. Unfortunately, incompetent kindness can make more trouble than villainy — and so the Hoon gets himself a super-scientific enemy. Now who'll rebuild the pizza parlour? (FPB) 8

Indy 12

by various; Blackmore Publishing

Wizard without superheroes; The Comics Journal that got out of bed on the right side; Indy presents the diversity of the comics genre, covering obscure books such as The Bloke along with not-so-obscure titles, such as Strangers in Paradise. You can be guaranteed never to miss the next success story. (RJ) 8

The Killer Fly 3

by Butler & Hogg; Slave Labor

<+> The world is too harsh a place, finally, for Putt, Maria and the Killer Fly. They go back to the circus, but there is no return to happiness. The circus itself has become strangely corrupt, and their comeback is a degrading farce. A weird, painful, beautiful comic. (FPB) 10

Law and Order 2

by Mychaels & Goffard
+ Laguna + Rapmund; Maximum

Big guns, big women, atrocious visuals. But at least there's a readable plot. Pity it's all been done before. (PCP) 2

Little Oz Squad

by Ahlquist & Sagara;
Patchwork Press

<- -> Oh dear no, this will never do. Ahlquist's writing doesn't suit the funny-kiddie genre; the second of the two stories here has no proper ending, and Sagara's artwork is just too much on the cutie side. Above all, Ahlquist should not rely on his Oz Squad characters to have any mystique, they are too new and too obscure. (FPB) 5

Melissa Moore:

Bodyguard 1

by Watkins & Reid
+ Millar; Draculina

Mr Hero the Newmatic Man 12

by Henderson & Makinen
+ Beatty; Tekno

by Walton; Planet Lucy Press

Dinosaurs escaping extinction in a stolen UFO? A psychiatrist who liberates women from their higher brain-functions so they make good housewives? I don't know what's going on. Walton's art is nice and cartoony, and it's all ripe with parody. (PaW) 8

Ranma 1/2 4 #10

by Takahashi; Viz

<+> Kodachi, the Black Rose, has returned and she's lusting after the male Ranma, while her brother Kuno is lusting after the female Ranma-chan! And he's willing to do almost anything to prevent Kodachi's romantic photographs being circulated. Superb! (PaW) 9

Riot 1

by Shiki; Viz

Thief, Billy the Kid, wants The Book for treasure, but a feisty young woman, Axel, is sworn to protect it. And when he unwittingly takes a blood oath with the book, so is he. An interesting start — neither character trusts the other, and the art is very nice indeed. (PaW) 8

Shades of Grey 9

by Gownley; Lady Luck Ltd

<+> Alex's misguided love for Hope leads him to theft and to the tragic end of the rhythm of some of William Shakespeare's grandest verses. If only, if only, if only Jimmy Gownley could draw as well as he can write! (FPB) 8 by Tucci + Cohn & various;

Shi/Cyblade 1

Crusade Comics; Image crossover

This continued Cyblade/Shi story takes an allegorical turn as a multitude of small press characters join forces against the would-be kingpin of the comics world. A biting commentary that makes its point well. (PCP) 8

If you thought Dave Sim's Spawn 10 was heavy with metaphors, you ain't seen nothing yet. Self-publishers and independent titles see their characters making debut appearances in this battle against Marvel and DC comics. The result is a poor story with mismatched art styles. What seems most ironic is that Image, who co-produced this book, have more in common with the baddies than the goodies. (RJ) 2

Skeleton Key 3

by Watson; Amaze Ink

<+ -> Tamsin's parents may be good sorts, but her plan to house a homeless fox princess with them is stretching it a bit. But that's the last thing on their minds as they go dimension-hopping and promptly endanger their lives. The art remains the book's defining feature. (FPB) 7

Skeleton Key 4

by Watson; Amaze Ink

<+ -> Tamsin tries to use the key to open a gateway to Kitsune's world. Guess what? She fails, and nearly gets them both killed in the process. Then we learn a bit more about Kitsune, and also that death might have been preferable to having to deal with Dirk and Dutch, the school Neanderthals. (FPB) 7

Silbuster 11

by Sahara; Antarctic Press

<+ +> The sisters take on two (male) pilots to train for the Starlight III, while the aliens's monsters attack Earth. This is a vast improvement on the last issue, more in line with earlier ones, with its humour and Japanese sentai (live-action) fight sequences. (PaW) 7

Stainless Steel

Armadillo 5

by Ryukihei; Antarctic Press

<-> A maidens-in-distress issue, with Tania forced to resort to the dragon armour for a solo encounter with the Necromancer, and Saisai being saved from being served up as a human's main course by the magician they were searching for. The art is still nice, although the story takes a break to give us some distress. (PaW) 6

Strange Attractors 11

by Cohen; RetroGrafix

<-> Sophie realises at last what the evidence for Peg's innocence was, but it seems almost too late — they are surrounded by the authorities, a good friend is killed and, as if that were not enough, an ancient metal monster awakens and pursues them. An addictive read, full of cliffhangers. (FPB) 8

Strangelove 2

by Freeman & Tatsuya; Entity

<+> Despite some weakening in Tatsuya's art, this keeps the promise of issue one. Excellent comedy-adventure with Strangelove's former lover, Hardick, uncovering a secret — and not telling her, Lowkey's daft castrato chatter getting him in big, big trouble, and the Hyperbullies just getting bored. Hilarious! (FPB) 8

Supersonic Soul Puddin' 3

by Macropoulos;
Four Cats Funnybooks

<+> Roosevelt's grandmother makes him a magic doll in the hope of winning Ophelia's love, but he falls asleep and strange things begin to happen. In the second story, Roosevelt and Ophelia go fishing, catch an egg, and other strange things begin to happen. Poetic and hauntingly beautiful. (FPB) 10

Swan 3

by Moreu; Little Idylls

<-> There is a line beyond which a hyperkinetic comedy style becomes too busy for its own good and in my view, Mike Moreu tends to cross it. Pity really, because the story of selfish Queen Alcestis is really imaginative and diverting. Perhaps he'll cool his jets a bit. (FPB) 6

Teknophage 7

by Jenkins & Davison + McKie

<+ -> Phage visits an old acquaintance kept in his deepest, darkest dungeon. The excellent storytelling is complex but original, intense yet humorous. The artwork is solid and sharp, the colours are superb. However, the writing is what truly shines — excellent stuff. (DM) 9

Vampirella Pin-Up Special

various creators; Harris

Well the colour and paper's nice, but that's about all. Most of the art is okay, and there are a few outstanding pieces, but there is none of the imagination of, say, Death Gallery. Page after page of the same character doing the same thing is pretty tedious and instantly forgettable. (NL) 1

Vampirella Strikes 1

by Sniegoski & McGuiness
+ Messingill; Harris

<+ -> Passion learns more of her origin and is tricked into joining a team. A solid script by Tom Sniegoski, who has some interesting ideas. McGuiness's pencils are good but not spectacular. A good jumping-on point for new readers. (DM) 6

Very Vicky: Calling All Hillbillies 1

by Mitchell & Christy;
Meet Danny Ocean Press

Only after several issues did I understand this tale of a sophisticated teenager in the American South enough to write a review: it's so firmly rooted in the States' culture that unless you understand something of that, you're not going to understand the title. This one is set in the southern hills, where centuries of isolation bred a weird but certainly not wonderful culture. (FPB) 7

Vigil: Desert Foxes 1

by Loudermilk &
Alverson; Millennium

An unpretentious but well-executed story that is rather like a good cop show, except the protagonists are vampires. Angry, gun-wielding ex-lady cop Grace Kimble kept her values after her un-death, and now fights her fellow vampires. Fine, suspenseful plot and credible characters make up an entertaining series. (FPB) 7

Wandering Star 9

by Wood; Pen & Ink

The pretty art style and light touch of this space-war tale suggest a charming piece of fluff, but there is iron in its soul. This issue deals with incredibly intense emotions; the scene in which the protagonist delays telling a particularly painful part of her story is truly excellent. (FPB) 9

Warlace 1/4

by Hickey; Knight Press

Presenting Knight Press' newest character (a half-naked woman warrior), this includes a rather self-important interview and a few dull sketches. Warlace herself does not look too promising: she's something to do with Indian mysticism — yawn. On the other hand, Bill Hickey really is a good artist. (FPB) 4

Warrior Nun - Areala II #2

by Dunn + Perry; Antarctic Press

<+ +> The enemy abducts Cheeta and brainwashes her into attacking Areala. The story has improved only slightly from last issue — Ben Dunn proves he can't write Cheeta. The high point is the Fred Perry backing strip, and that's far too short. It sure ain't Gold Digger. (PaW) 5

Wolff & Byrd, Counsellors of the Macabre 8

by Lash; Exhibit A

Wu Wei 2

by Stern;

Xander in the Lost Universe 2

by Fortier & Randall + McClellan

<+ -> Xander is transformed into a black ghost — another brilliant script with some well-presented ideas. The pencils are fairly standard, but the computer colours, backgrounds especially, are very realistic. (DM) 7

X-O Manowar 56

by Bailey + Golia
& Smith + Gwynn; Valiant

<+> X-O takes on the might of Kryptos in a fight for Earth and the X-O armour itself. That's it really — the issue is an unimaginative fisticuff spectacular with spreads filled with five or six words. It's a shame, because the artwork from Andy Smith is superb and warrants, frankly, a script of comparable quality. (SiB) 4

UK TITLES

Force 10 Starter Pack 0-3

Morris; Crow Comics

A starter pack available from Crow Comics, consisting of the first story-arc of this recent independent creation. A newly assembled team of super-powered youths go into action for the first time, intervening in the current Balkans conflict, while hidden political machinations actually have far more control over their fates. For a small press publication, this is actually very well produced and presented. The art is consistent, although never exciting. The script never quite catches alight until the end portion of #3, where the team seems to get in its stride. It's not the finished article as yet, but there is definite promise here and it would be a shame to see a genuine effort go to waste. (IRS) 5

by Grist; Dancing Elephant

<-> Another cracking issue, this time dealing with Oscar Darke's background. Unusually, it leaves lots of unanswered questions — but it's none the worse for that. I advise everybody to insist that their local retailer stock this title. (JG) 9

Judge Dredd: Lawman of the Future 7

<-> Revolt of the Robots is a new take on the classic Robot War story from 2000AD. Like the original, it introduces the cringeworthy Walter the Robot, but is not as good as the original. The second tale, Quake, by Furman and O'Ready, is substantially more entertaining. Death Hunt introduces the Hunter's Club, but due to editorial restrictions they are unable to kill. This is only a minor problem when compared to the debut of Judge Death next issue! Will he have to be re-named Judge Bruise-you-quite-badly? (ST) 6

Judge Dredd: Lawman of the Future 8

various creators; Fleetway

<+> Plaudits to David Bishop and Robbie Morrison — the former for commissioning the Morrison's Judge Death tale, which succeeds in overcoming the editorial restraint on the depiction of death in this title. Although purists may object, the idea that Judge Death kills by extracting your soul is probably more terrifying than having him stick an arm through your heart. Nice one, people. Any chance of seeing the other Dark Judges? (ST) 8

Judge Dredd Magazine 7

various creators; Fleetway

<+> The only two strips currently worth reading come to their respective conclusions this issue. The Three Amigos split up following the success of their mission. Humour abounds in this tale, particularly in Judge Death's parting line, which wouldn't be out of place coming from a Scooby Doo villain. In Alan Grant and Arthur Ranson's Satan, Cassandra Anderson pulls a crucifix on Lucifer. Does it work? Hmm, guess you'll have to find out for yourself. Although the ending is a little abrupt, this remarkable piece of work definitely deserves the accolades it is bound to receive. How the inconsistent Megazine will fare following the loss of these two quality strips is very much open to question. (ST) 6

various creators; Fleetway

<+> Durham Red is featured on an eye-catching cover by series artist Mark Harrison (who is doing some of his best work to date on the series) — if only the scripts were of the same quality. The lead Dredd strip, The Cal Files continues, bringing a major revelation from Joe Dredd's past (and I do mean major!). Hammerstein (of the ABC Warriors) causes havoc in the second Dredd tale. This story by Pat Mills and Jason Brashill has yet to live up to its potential. Worth mentioning are the A-Z Judge Dredd takeouts, featuring unpublished entries from the Dredd encyclopedia — essential reading for owners of the book. Finally, agents Mulder and Scully make their debut in the Readers Art section. This amusingly clever piece, by Paul Scroggie, also features the unlikely appearance of Judge Death. (ST) 7

various creators; Fleetway

<+ -> "A New Wave of Thrill Power", declares the cover. Probably a bit optimistic on Tharg, the alien editor's part, but a little exaggeration never hurt anybody. It appears that 2000AD has abandoned the two per issue Judge Dredd stories, the single tale here being typical Dredd fare from John Wagner, highlighting the eccentricities of Mega-City citizens. Making a welcome return are the ABC Warriors and Chopper. The former continues the excellent Hellbringer tale from last year, but it is difficult to judge the latter from one episode. The tedious Rogue Trooper also returns, while the only "new" thrill is the intriguing PARAsites: set in Britain, in 2041, it focuses on the rise of a criminal plague called The Shade. (ST) 7

various creators; Fleetway

<+> Highlights this week are the return of the superb Vector 13 series, with art from the incomparable John Ridgway, and the continuation of the excellent Chopper series, with some gorgeous pastel artwork from John Higgins. There's also Kev Walker's groovy painted work on ABC Warriors and a promising new series called PARAsites. Down side? Steve White writing Rogue Trooper and a dodgy Dredd saga. (SiB) 7

SMALL PRESS

by Ralph Kidson & Martin Meeks;
3 Langridges Close, Newick,
East Sussex BN8 4LZ; £1.00

Straight from the pages of the Comic Creators Guild award-winner Captain Dolphin comes the inept Allens — based on spoofs of the Giger Aliens. Ralph Kidson's script is down to earth and unfathomably hysterical, while artist Martin Meeks turns in some wonderful, unique visuals. Great fun: (NL) 9 various creators; from Stephen Prestwood; 121 Leeds Rd, Selby,

Dark Zone 2

North Yorkshire YO8 0JG; 80p

This superhero anthology is the vastly improved successor to Otherside/Flipside, developing its plots and characters but giving them much more scope. This issue sees especially strong art on Trilithon, Falcon successfully develops Dark Wars, and Darren Powell scripts a near-future detective Blake. (NL) 7

Dirtbag 1-5

by Richard Johnston; c/o Coaching House, Watlington,
Oxford OX9 5PX; £2.30 inc

I'm in two minds about this. On one hand art and lettering are amateurish, and following the plot would break a snake's back. On the other, this tale of beer-soaked space shenanigans has a bubbly, unconquerable vivacity that makes you stick with it and — well, chortle. Undeniably enjoyable, for all its faults. (FPB) 6

Do-Do Man 1

by Mikhailo Kazybrid; Edge
Group, PO Box 159, Sutton
Surrey SM1 3TU; £2.99

After drinking a cocktail of chemicals, the protagonist becomes (in his terms) deranged and begins showing every sign of being abnormally sane. A giant-sized, professionally produced comic, cheap at the price, from one of the most hilarious talents I ever had the pleasure to encounter. (FPB) 9

Mean Time 1

by Bamforth & Carstairs; 36
Old Dover Rd, Canterbury,
Kent CT1 3JB; 75p

After the collaboration on AAagh Tales, Adrian Bamforth and Paul Carstairs return with another future shock-style anthology, this time with a time-travel theme (not by Huey Lewis, thankfully!). The three tales involve a renegade crossing timelines, a man travelling back in time to inhabit his own body, and the hilarious reality of Attila the Hun. The script zips along, and the art is lovely. (NL) 8

Memory Man 1

by Paul Rainey; 10 Stafford Grove, Shenley Church End,
Milton Keynes MK5 6AY; £1.50

An exceptionally entertaining and bizarre read, concerning itself with strange deaths, tattoos and sad, lonely individuals. The art is simplistic, almost childlike, but wonderfully precise. The writing is witty, dark and intriguing — the only disappointment being that the title character is the least interesting person in the book. Highly recommended. (IRS) 8

Theatre of Conceits 1

by Powell & Lowe; 5 Green
Lane, Upper Gornal, Dudley,
West Midlands DY3 1XG; 75p

Picking up strands from Dan and the Ankou, Darren Powell introduces his character Damfool as he presents two stories. The first is the excellent Ankou and the second, Frog-Eyed Dreamer, an odd, enigmatic tale of a bizarre little girl with mysterious powers. Powell turns in his usual high-quality scripting, especially in Ankou; and artist Chris Lowe's use of two distinct styles helps the atmosphere immensely. (NL) 8

Vicious 3

by Peter Ashton; c/o 29 Wheatsheaf
Road, Birmingham B16 0RZ; £2.00

I'm reviewing this after only reading half of the issue. If I waited until I finished it I would be writing this next October! If you want the true voice of fandom, a platform for anybody to write about anything related to comics, this is it. A thoroughly enjoyable read. (IRS) 9

Walt Disney's Uncle Scrooge 295

by Don Rosa; Gladstone

WHO IS the world's most popular comics character? Spawn? No. The X-Men? Naah. Superman? Uh-uh. It's Uncle Scrooge. The great Carl Barks' ancient feathered miser.

But that's not why Don Rosa won the Eisner: Best Serialized Story award for the still incomplete Young Scrooge McDuck serial against formidable opposition. It's because... well, let me tell you: The hard-beaked young duck, having made his fortune and founded the city of Duckburg, goes out looking for opportunities to broaden his empire.

So far, we must understand, he has always been honest, if tough. But now he is getting drunk on wealth. He starts cutting corners.

Eventually, a witch doctor as tough as Scrooge himself humiliates him in public. "So, on a dark day in darkest Africa, Scrooge McDuck committed the only dishonest deed of his entire life... one that would haunt him for years to come."

Scrooge is always a duck of tremendous force, and his one crime is in keeping with his fierce grandeur. He hires a mob of white-trash to crush the village that spurned him. The panel where his thugs storm the walls is a study of economy (it uses only a quarter page) and power; just as the scene on the next page, where Scrooge's sisters watch the village burn.

This is as harsh a description of colonial violence as comics ever saw — in a children's comic. Scrooge repents immediately, but can't undo his crime. His sisters leave in disgust, and the crime comes back to haunt him, literally.

Rosa uses a zombie sent by the vindictive witch doctor to symbolise his guilt — a superb device understandable to any reader, whether adult or child.

This fearsome creature pursues him from pole to pole, surviving ice and sea. The zombie is eventually stopped, and Scrooge returns to Duckburg, although honest according to his lights, a bitter soul.

The strongest panel in the whole story shows him as a black and snarling outline, growing from the ship to the city's populace, who have turned out to greet him.

A baby Donald Duck makes his first and memorable appearance, treating his heartless uncle to a thoroughly deserved kick.

This epic does full justice to the grandiose myth Carl Barks created, without forgetting a sense of humour. Slapstick and farce are thick on the ground, and yet the final effect is both grand and sad.

This is great comics and, even in a year replete with fine stories, the Eisner judges were absolutely right. (FPB)

THE CLEARANCE CENTRE FOR PUBLISHER'S OVERSTOCKS AND REMAINDERS

Hi, we're back.

That four weeks between issues comes around sooo fast, your feet hardly touch the ground and its time to get the next advertisement ready. This month we have four pages of excellent and different goodies for you which can happily be added to last months six pages and our pink catalogue thirty two pages, giving you a whole forty two page extravaganza to wander through (and of course, according to the Hitchhikers Guide, 42 is the answer to everything).

If you don't have a copy of our 32 page Catalogue, just drop us an SAE (stamped addressed envelope) and we'll send you one right away.

This month, we have lots of Christmas gift ideas and bargains, from revised pricing (downward) on recent DC's to toys, tees and paperbacks. For any of you suffering withdrawal symptoms at the lack of advertised inexpensive comics from our million plus stock, just think what a feast we'll be able to lay before you early in 1996 when we get into stock taking revisions and adding all the great books that have come our way in the last three months.

In the meantime, you can still obtain your fantasy fix from The Warehouse by checking out the incredible diversity of product that we are offering in the current 42 pages of advertisements.

For those of you new to Comics International or who missed the last months issue, we offered Heavy Metal, Soft & Hard cover comic strip books, Topps, First, Comico and Fleetway among other things in our six pager. Normally we don't allow adverts to be mixed and matched for purchasing as our computerised stock control doesn't allow for it. However this season, our current set of ads (all 42 pages) does not expire until December 31st 1995, so you are able to order goods from the whole range until that date.

May I take this opportunity to wish you and yours extremely positive compliments of the season and trust that The Comics Warehouse can serve your comic and fantasy requirements for many years to come.

Join me now on a flying carpet of comfort, let the Royal Mail and British Telecom do the work. With over a million books and hundreds of toys, we have something to please everyone.

The prices in this advertisement are valid from publication until December 31st 1995 only. Please remember that all our advertisements and offers are normally self contained and cannot be mixed or matched with any other advertisement. This four page advertisement and the six pager that preceded it last month, breaks that mould as they can be used in conjunction with our current "pink" 32 page Catalogue (copy available on request with a large SAE). All prices are per copy except set or pack prices which are for single sets as advertised.

If you order titles for mature readers, Vertigo, etc. we must have an age statement that you are over 16. If you wish to order more mature books like Heavy Metal then we must have an age statement that you are over 18 years. Thank you. Time to move over and let the text & pictures talk to you. So get your eyeballs a-scanning, your pens and highlighters at your side and ready yourself to pluck the luscious adventure fruit from the Warehouse Tree of Entertainment and Enlightenment. Enjoy...

Colin & The Warehouse Crew here to serve you...

Representing "Your Right to Read". We believe you have the right to be able to afford and enjoy comics

Check out the final page of this months offerings from The Warehouse for this great Darth Vader Collecting Bank.

The minimum order is just £5.00 for written orders or £10.00 for phone/faxed orders with a flat fee of £3.00 for delivery mainland U.K. - whatever the size of the order. See the last page of our advertisement for full ordering instructions. Please note: to improve despatch we print our computer codes used for each title (e.g. DC71 = Batman: M300 = Uncanny X-Men). It would be extremely helpful to us if you would give the relevant computer code with your order, whether verbally with telephone orders or when listing written orders.

DC COMICS:

We gave you a comprehensive listing of DC Comics in our current pink pages catalogue (copy available on request) which does not expire until the end of December. Comics come into The Warehouse every single week of the year both new comics and older issues. Early next year we'll be bringing you right up to date again across all the publishers; but right now I've had a quick look at DC and checked both our current price and stock levels. I've listed here some of the most popular recent books at prices revised downward from our pink catalogue as our Christmas Thank you for your continued and loyal support of The Warehouse and The Warehouse philosophy.

T-SHIRT CHRISTMAS SPECIAL

All T Shirts have been imported from the USA and are top quality tees. American sizes always run large so there is little difference between L and XL. As supplies of individual T-shirt designs are limited, please list alternate choices and leave the size availability to us. Thank you.

TS3000A - Any ONE T-Shirt £12.95

(£11.02 plus £1.93 VAT = £12.95)

TS3000B - Any TWO (different subject) T-Shirts £11.95 each

(£10.17 plus £1.78 VAT = £11.95)

TS3000C - Any THREE (different subject) T-Shirts £10.95 each

(£9.32 plus £1.63 VAT = £10.95)

TS3000D - Any FOUR (different subject) T-Shirts £9.95 each

(£8.47 plus £1.48 VAT = £9.95)

PLEASE USE CODE TS3000 followed by the correct letter of the alphabet to denote your chosen quantity of Quality Tees: then list the separate subjects you'd like us to send plus alternates and we'll pick pack and ship for you.

Choose your selection of Tees from the following subjects: I say subjects because there may be slightly different designs within each subject, but hey, they are all great, good to wear, smooth on the skin, (who's been watching too many fairy commercials then....)

Joking aside, welcome to The Warehouse Tee Shirt Emporium, perfect inexpensive gifts for people who love comics and for people who know absolutely nothing about comics, but like to wear cool gear...

If you have any specific requirement e.g. Next Gen Borg Shirt or Classic Trek Spock Shirt, we will do our best to accommodate those requirements from our stock, but cannot make any guarantees: it's up to you to jump on the T-Shirt Bargain of The Season. Happy Hunting.

The latest news, views and rumours in our ever-popular independent look at the hits, misses, prices, projects and people making comics news. Reported by the ever mysterious and controversial team of investigative diggers and delvers known to the world only as ITMA.

A legendary imprint?

WHEN the likes of John Byrne, Frank Miller and Arthur Adams announced the formation of the Legend comics imprint to be handled by Dark Horse Comics, the news was met with great elation.

This was then followed by the short-lived Bravura imprint, with Walt Simonson, Gil Kane, Jim Starlin, Norm Breyfogle and such.

But the Bravura "group" appears to have all but disbanded since Marvel's acquisition of Bravura's publisher, Malibu Comics.

Industry insiders had been speculating that a rash of creator-owned imprints would follow Legend and Bravura, but this didn't materialise and now the image of the Legend-styled imprint has been tarnished slightly by the obvious lack of material being produced by all but Michael Allred of Legend.

Enter Barry Windsor-Smith, who has just signed an agreement with Dark Horse to publish his new creations: Paradox Man, Young Gods and Freebooters. But not, as some people might have expected, under the Legend imprint.

Rumour has it that Windsor-Smith has been contemplating setting up his own "rival" imprint and creators such as Bernie Wrightson, Howard Chaykin, Jim Starlin, and possibly even George Perez and Walter Simonson are said to have been approached to try and establish this new imprint.

But then, Windsor-Smith recently told Dez that the agreement for his own work hadn't been signed until a full eight weeks after Dark Horse's Smith promo at San Diego.

A slip in time?

TIMESLIP is an interesting idea in the new Marvel Vision magazine, Marvel's version of Wizard. It is a two-page What If? type feature, which, with some of today's top artists, shows depictions of famous Marvel heroes as they might look if they were created in the 1990s.

Apparently an eagle-eyed editor at Marvel suggested that the idea could be adapted into a new select format series of one-shots by some of today's top writers and artists.

Expect a Timeslip series at any point during 1996.

Green gossip

PETER David has been dropping a few possible clues (or red herrings) about the immediate future of the Incredible Hulk.

With the release of the popular writer's first Hulk novel, What Savage Beast, a direct link between comics and books has been established. The canny royalty-seeking author has possibly created an integral crossover to the current continuity of the Hulk comic. Well, books gave comics gimmick covers, comics gave books Peter David.

Indications are that David is planning another persona change for Bruce (Hulk) Banner and the novel backs this up when Doc Samson suggests that we've only seen a few of the possible multiple personalities Banner might possess. It seems the Hulk could become comics 20th Century Schizoid Man.

In a recent correspondence with one of our ITMites, David said, "The current supporting cast of the Hulk is: Betty and [Chief] Largo (on the homefront) and conspiring against him: Senator Reb Ralston, and Major [William] Talbot. That's been pretty consistent. Then again, nothing remains static in this title."

"After Ghosts of the Future (which includes an Avengers crossover) things will change once again. I have no immediate plans to have the Pantheon return (they were there for four solid years) but on the other hand, the Hulk will have a new ongoing sidekick... whom you've seen before...". Curious stuff.

A couple of guesses have already been made as to who the new sidekick could be. It seems unlikely that Rick Jones (been with everybody, he has) is in the frame, but someone did suggest Peter Parker.

It seems that David's policy of constant change has worked. The Hulk is still one of Marvel's best-selling titles and fan reaction to new artist Angel Medina is very positive.

It also seems that Marvel Edge's Cutting Edge 1 is quite difficult to find. Despite a full-length Hulk story, retailers did not match their orders with the Incredible Hulk and this has led to a shortage.

The What Savage Beast novel is also in demand, especially because of its possible links to present continuity. Many comic shops didn't even consider ordering it and we could well see it beginning to rise in price — especially the hardcover.

Grant's JLA

IS THERE a Justice League of America revamp in the works again? It seems so, but there is some confusion as to who is going to do it and when it's all going to happen.

Indications are that DC is to cancel all the Justice League family and relaunch next summer with a mini-series and a single ongoing Justice League of America series. But other sources suggest that two JLA books will remain, both with new "top class" creative teams.

Let's just take time out for a minute and consider this. DC has (or had) about seven different related books, all related by one word... justice. Let's be honest, in the '90s what does any potential reader think of the word justice? Let's get real, DC. Justice? There's no such thing.

However, back to the ITM-ites... Mike Carlin hinted at possible changes for the JLA at UKCAC and on investigation a few names were thrown up: Grant Morrison, a long time lover of (and frustrated non-writer of) superheroes; Mark "Mr Fixit" Waid and even Marvel's Fabian (Ex-X-Men) Nicieza. When asked, our ITMite within DC said Waid was "probably far too busy to even consider it". They had not heard about Nieceza's involvement and suggested we follow our lead on Grant Morrison. It was also intimated that someone at DC may have had a big mouth!

All changing

ONE possible reason why Mark Waid may not be involved in the Justice League revamp is the rumour that Waid has been offered an exclusive contract with Marvel (hot on the heels of Humberto Impulse Ramos's exclusive defection).

Waid, currently writing Captain America, about to write for Marvel X-Men and X-Force and for DC Flash, Impulse, Underworld Unleashed and the soon-to-be-released Kingdom Come, has apparently been signed up as Bob (promotion? Me?) Harras's replacement on the Avengers. Sounds like another revamp is in the works.

□ The prolific Warren ("Thought you'd forgotten me") Ellis has been approached to write Stormwatch for Image. The book has suffered a real downturn in fortunes and Image editor Mike Heisler hopes that Warren can help regain some of the ground which made Stormwatch such a popular book after its launch. Sounds like a few deaths are due.

□ While it seems that Ellis's job on Excalibur is secure, the same can't be said for Jeph Loeb's positions on the X-books.

The former Hollywood scriptwriter has already been replaced on X-Man by John Ostrander. Loeb also relinquishes writing X-Force around issue 55 (to Mark Waid) and his job on Cable appears in jeopardy, as it is believed that Bob Harras wants John Ostrander to write that as well as X-Man.

□ Despite the cancellation of both War Machine and Force Works, British writers Dan Abnett and Andy Lanning are set to write a new Avengers book, nostalgically titled The Mighty Avengers.

In total there seems likely to be four, if not five, titles in the newly formed Avengers family. But fan-favourite Mike Deodato is unlikely to continue with The Avengers (sorry, Simon, no more 10s on that book) after issue 400. He is being lined up for a twelve-month stint on an X-book — Cable or X-Force being the likely candidates. Unless of course, Marvel's planning a new title...

Out, but not finished?

THE Sandman has definitely been cancelled but... will either of the proposed new titles, The Endless or The Dreaming, have a name change in the preceding months before they are due to be released?

DC execs are said to be still not sure that cancelling The Sandman was a good idea and indications are that a "cooling off" period will be observed (in a hope, presumably, to keep Neil Gaiman happy) and then the title may well be resurrected.

The type of format isn't clear, but suggestions are that if any Sandman spin-off projects are scheduled in the interim they will almost certainly carry a larger The Sandman logo, than they otherwise would.

It seems that customer reaction is divided on the decision and there is an obvious pattern emerging. A

Milton Keynes shop manager polled most buyers of the latest issue of The Sandman, asking them if they think it is a good decision to cancel the book. Of the twenty two customers asked, ten said yes, ten said no and two were undecided.

Of the people who said yes, most cited that it was fair to cancel the book as Neil Gaiman requested. They were mostly sorry to see it go. Of those that said no, all of them said that they felt that there were more stories to tell — many by other writers. After all, even Todd McFarlane lets other people play with Spawn.

Although the interesting fact was that the majority of people who said no, only buy The Sandman and nothing else. When asked if they would be buying Death: The Time of Your Life, half said yes. When asked if they would read The Dreaming or The Endless, most said no.

The majority of those people who agreed that The Sandman should

This obviously begs the question: If you ran a comics company, would you cancel your best selling product because the person who operates the machine leaves? And if so, would you let your parent company find out?

Quentin gets BIG E

SELF-confessed comics nut, Quentin (we need to tell you?) Tarantino has just agreed to a deal which will see his latest film, From Dusk Till Dawn, adapted by Tekno Comix owners BIG Entertainment as a graphic novel.

The film which Tarantino describes as a cross between Sam Peckinpah's seminal western The Wild Bunch, Martin Scorsese's The Desperate Hours and George Romero's Night of the Living Dead, follows two criminal brothers south of the border where they are trapped in the Titty Twister, a Mexican strip joint, surrounded by vampires. (Like when Phil and Dez went to San Diego, eh?)

Tarantino said, "We're making a head-banging, throat-slashing, blood-flowing, teeth-biting-into-jugular horror film." A new Pepsi slogan in the making, there.

He continued, "The thing that's kind of cool is we're basically making this horror film buff drive-in movie with this really big budget — and we're not pulling back. We're not trying to find some happy middle ground that everybody and their cousins can watch, and say, Oh well, we don't want to offend their sensibilities. Hell no, we're going out of our way to offend sensibilities!"

Malibu to Mainbrain

CHRIS Ulm and Tom Mason, the allegedly cuddly co-founders of Malibu Comics, have announced the formation of a new entertainment development company specialising in comic books, games, trading cards and marketing and advertising.

The duo have set up office two minutes from Malibu Beach. According to Mason, "It's the greatest meeting room in the world!" According to globe-trotting editor Dez, it's also three minutes from the second greatest meeting room in the world, Alice's Restaurant!

How the mighty fall

ABOUT four months ago we told you how the one-time "hottest comic of the century", New Mutants 87 (with that all important first appearance by Cable) had plummeted to the post-hype back issue price of £3.50.

At the Memorabilia '95 convention at Birmingham's NEC, a Billy (as in Billy Bunter-punter) was searching through a box of comics all priced for a pound each. Halfway through the box he stumbled on an entire run of New Mutants 87 to 100, all priced to sell at a quid each.

The honest collector pulled the books out and asked the dealer if they had been put in the box by mistake. They weren't and the collector walked away with all 14 books for the discounted price of £12, a £101 (or 94%) drop.

One-upmanship

DC Comics has lost Star Trek — it's official. The two DC Star Trek comics both finish at issue 80. There will be a gap of between four and six months before Paramount launches its own Star Trek comics.

It is believed that Deep Space Nine will also join the Paramount Comics stable when the license with Malibu runs out.

The news of the Paramount comics imprint was greeted with enormous enthusiasm by Trekkers the world over and Paramount believes that its Star Trek comics, marketed and aimed at a broader audience, will far outstrip the sales figures obtained by any other publisher all the way back to Gold Key (who published the first Trek comics in 1967). Not a lot of people know this, but artist Alberto Giolitti had hardly any reference photos of the cast back in the early days, so he had to draw lots of back of head shots. Go check.

Paramount is also planning a Star Trek: Voyager comic which may help stimulate some interest in the new (and poorly received) extension to the Star Trek legend. Voyager has been wallowing at around 100th in the Nielsen Ratings and Paramount execs are concerned that the viewing audience is getting Star Trek overkill. You can watch, on average, six hours of Star Trek series every day, on US television!

Paramount decided on some decisive action and is believed to have sanctioned the cancellation of Star Trek: Deep Space Nine at the end of its fourth season, to spend more time and resources on improving Star Trek: Voyager.

This decision was top secret. Well, it was until SF series rival, Jan Michael Straczynski (of Babylon 5) announced the news on the Star Trek Forum of CompuServe!

Babylon 5 is the third highest rated SF-related show (behind X-Files and Deep Space Nine) on US TV networks. It has just been renewed for a fourth season.

Another bonus for Straczynski — especially in the wake of the slack he received in posting DS9's demise — is that DC has agreed to renew the license on Babylon 5 to produce a number of mini-series and graphic novels, concluding the story he set in motion in Babylon 5 #1.

You know, it's a rare occasion when you get this lucky, but I was looking through this morning's post (at least an hour-a-day job if I want to keep up on everything), when I realised how much I really enjoy this job. It's really great. It might not win the kind of awards previous magazines I've been involved in have collected. It might not be as creative and stimulating. But it's great. And I think it's important too. More important than Warrior, Starburst, Doctor Who or any of the rest, even Buster and Mad. After all, they were comics in a sea of similar titles. I'd like to think that what we're doing here is far more important. We're publishing information about what everybody's doing. To inform, occasionally to entertain, possibly even to challenge perceptions every once in a while.

As well as hardened comic fans, it's sent to journalists across the broadcast and print media, agencies, colleges, societies, libraries and more. It attempts to show the world what potential the comics medium has. How vast the scope can be, and how there's more to the industry than just The Beano and The Dandy. But, again hopefully, in a non-partisan way. We try not to ignore any aspect of the medium; from humour to horror, from superhero to autobiographical. And judging from your feedback, you seem to enjoy what we're doing almost as much as we do.

Besides, how else would you know that Commando Picture Library was still being produced? Or why Vicious is essential reading?

Sixties composer Bobby Hebb sang about one man in a hundred having a satisfied mind. Car crashes and parachute jumps notwithstanding, I'm finally beginning to realise what he meant.

WITH regards to the letter by Don Cooper (Comics International 60), he is not alone in having had such experiences in comic shops. Staff in my local shop have similarly foul mouths.

Surely, in this age of falling sales and so on, new custom isn't going to be enticed inside a shop by someone using the F word constantly. It seems so self-destructive, not to mention stupid.

It feels like shops may want to attract new custom in order to combat the slump in sales, but seem only able to pander to adolescent males and the like.

Younger kids aren't going to be taken to such shops by parents and the seemingly natural sexism that exists in comic shops alienates potential female customers.

This type of behaviour doesn't

YOU KNOW, it doesn't matter how carefully you write something, there is always someone who completely misses the point. Such is the case with Francis President's letter in Comics International 60, over my previously published comment on Image women.

Mr President maintains that there is nothing wrong in the way Image artists draw women. It's just a style like "manga comics" and nobody complains about "square eyes". As a further defence, he states that manipulation of women's physical features occurs in advertising and, probably, in other mediums too.

Well that's all right, then. If they do it in advertising, why shouldn't they do it in comics? Answers on a postcard, please.

The point of the article was that Image women help create and support unrealistic expectations of real women (whereas manga's "square eyes" do not — well, not for most of us, anyway). "Young male adolescents", as Mr President puts it (as opposed to old male adolescents, presumably) may know these images aren't real, but it doesn't stop them wishing they were. And that desire — even if not projected overtly (and it often is) — puts pressure on real women to change themselves, sometimes with disastrous results (just as those adverts do. Ever hear of anorexia nervosa, Francis?)

The fantasy women of comics, advertisements, films, etc., combine to create a gestalt factor; the result of which is unhappy women who cannot look like the images of perfection that surround them and unhappy men who are constantly disappointed by the imperfect looks of real women. Take away the misleading images and you may lessen this unhappiness. That's all I was trying to say.

Except I wasn't. Frankly, I couldn't give a damn one way or another, as I long ago gave up on the idea of ever changing people's perceptions of the opposite sex. What I was trying to do was stir up a bit of controversy.

I personally think that the Image women look silly, so I thought I'd write a comment about it. Mr President took the bait. Disappointingly, however, he took the wrong bit of the bait. Oh well, serves me right for trying to write something with a bit of humour.

As for my "whining" about my own comic not selling very well, due to my drawing women in a "true to life" way, I'm afraid that here Mr President didn't even get the stick, let alone the wrong end. Firstly, the comic isn't even printed yet (that's why I used the future tense) and secondly, I never said I drew true-to-life women. Hell, they're barely beyond stick drawings. I was using this as a pretext for the article. In other words, a subtle introduction.

Mr President failed to recognise this, unfortunately — no doubt due to his continuous exposure to Image comics, which are not exactly noted for their subtlety (or introductions, come to think of it).

IN RESPONSE to the debate (debacle?) about Verotik (not Verotika; that's the name of their anthology title, not the name of the company itself), I thought Peter David answered hot-headed Bernard Schaffer's comments very well last month.

But he left a few threads still tangled, mainly Schaffer's supposition that Glen Danzig put out the issue of Verotika Schaffer protested about to provoke the kind of response among twelve year old boys which Schaffer observed.

Now, I haven't seen the particular issue in question, as Verotik titles are not easy to find in the UK, and it certainly sounded extreme nasty stuff from Schaffer's description of it. But why must it be presumed that the story in question, A Taste of Cherry, was created with the sole purpose of titillating, or subverting, a bunch of twelve year olds?

Verotika is an "adults only" title, and like other Verotik titles is horrible, extreme and nihilistic (perhaps adolescently so?) in its "philosophy". But for all that, it's a visually exciting and well-produced title.

I have every confidence that from reading some of his comics,

Glen Danzig would be unconcerned if a small group of pre-teen show-offs (no doubt responding to peer-group pressure as little boys do) had taken one of his stories and failed to see its brutal, nihilistic message.

People get tortured, raped and killed in this world; and comics, like other media, can legitimately reflect this disturbing fact. Not everyone likes to read this type of story, and perhaps it's a good idea to keep such things out of the hands of children. But do the group of boys that Schaffer writes about represent all children? Or were they in fact incipient delinquents who would misunderstand and gloat over violence in any circumstances, no matter what?

So why should Glen Danzig care? His comics are intended for a mature readership. Dysfunctional twelve year olds don't come into this bracket. You can't blame Danzig if his products fall into the wrong hands.

Finally, if Diamond aren't going to distribute Verotik products in the UK, will another company distribute these products? If not, where can UK readers get Verotika, Jaguar God, etc, so we can decide for ourselves what the fuss is all about?

A good point there, Stephen. Surely the onus is on the retailer, not the publisher, to keep mature titles out of young hands. Once producers start censoring product because it might fall into the wrong hands, we're well on the road to a totally bland society. Or has that already happened? ...Dez

Anthony Jones, 6 Campion Crt,
Blaby, Leicester

PETER David addressed a perennial problem in comics today, censorship. What with Glen Danzig's Verotika, Knockabout's Our Troubles with Crumb and that oh-so tedious idea of Naked cover variations, I can see another round of pointless debate ahead.

Surely, as is the case with Glen Danzig's Verotika, the easiest thing would be to have ignored it. Bernard Schaffer's letter, which Peter David addressed quite correctly, has achieved a significant victory for both Verotik and back issue dealers. Without the exposure Comics International, The Comics Buyers Guide and the Internet has given to this subject, Verotika would have little or no interest to comic collectors. After all, Bisley's contribution is well below his best and the other "hot" names involved seem to be just creating by rote.

Already there are adverts for comics by Verotik, with dealers asking incredibly inflated prices for what is essentially a company that produces nasty little stories, which are unprofessionally done and are manufactured to produce the desired response from a faction of the Moral Majority and hence propagate more interest.

Actually Glen Danzig should be pleased, I hear sales on Verotik comics have increased — presumably people want to see just how low he will go.

As long as comic retailers struggle to survive, many of them will take a gamble by selling an "adults only" title to a minor. The law can prosecute the retailer.

A back issue dealer at a mart can sell an "adults only" comic to a child and get away with it scott free, because there is no regulation at comic marts.

It is something which won't be stopped whatever government is in power. If the issue of censorship is addressed and decided in parliament, you can bet your life that there will be a lot of unhappy people, whichever way the censorship debate swings.

When will people realise that talking publicly about dross such as Verotika is only helping those who want to censor comics. If we ignored stuff like this, it really would go away. The only people to have benefitted from this is Glen Danzig and unscrupulous back issue dealers.

I'll bet Bernard Schaffer actually works for Glen. Danzig. If he doesn't, he should be put on the payroll.

WELL, my first attempt at sending you an electronic LoC [letter of comment] seemed to work OK, so here's a further one with a few observations on issue 61 of Comics International.

The X-Men checklist proved useful to keep me up-to-date on what Marvel's "Merry Mutants" are doing. I've yet to investigate the Professor Xavier & the X-Men title, but I understand that it's retellings of the original X-Men series (the one you and I were reading back in 1963!) and not just reprints. My question is how much credit do the original creators get for these 1990s updates?

I read Peter David's column with interest — Peter eloquently gave a "big picture" view of the whole issue of comics censorship vs freedom of expression.

At the end of the day, is the real answer to vote with your wallet? (ie. don't open it to buy any products from publishers who produce items like the discussed — or was that disgust? — Verotika.

I sympathise with Paul Aaman's view that the X-Men Rareties book was lacking in rareties. Mind you, when you consider how many times some Marvel strips have been reprinted, "rareties" seems to be a most inappropriate word to use for any of their titles!

I see the news of the cutback in DC newsstand distribution in the UK has disappointed several readers — hopefully, things will adjust in due course.

ESTABLISHED OVER 15 YEARS

...AND STILL THE BEST IN SCOTLAND!

Ever wished you could afford to advertise in one of the top three selling titles in UK comic shops?

YOU CAN! Everybody knows that Spawn and the X-Men are the top-selling monthlies in most UK comic shops. But do you know what is third? According to our surveys, over the last year it has consistently been Comics International.

On average, comic shops get though over 100 copies every month. And that excludes quantities distributed by mail order & mart dealers, export copies, or such professional organisations as the Comics Creators Guild & The Cartoonists Club of Great Britain.

Now you know why over 90% of our advertisers continue every issue. It works.

We've never sold space, we don't make deals or special offers (not even with editorial contributors!). If you want to advertise, the details are on page two.

But you'll have to call us, we don't hard sell because we don't need to. Phone us any time between 10.30am and 6.00pm Monday to Friday to talk about advertising. We'll tell you our sales levels (not just our print run or "circulation"), returns levels, export, our comic shop and newsagent ratio, just about everything a potential advertiser could want to know.

But don't ask for the advertising department. We don't have one because we're not trying to sell you anything.

RED HOT COMICS - Where the customer comes first.

Artists wanted for comic. Must be good at drawing motorbikes, guns, army blokes and sexy babes. Send samples to David Fleming, 164 Crankhall Lane, Wednesbury, West Midlands WS10 0EB.

Say kids, what time is it? Time to buy Rabid & Stuff! Rabid & Stuff 1 is out now. Send £1 to Richard Smith, Flat 2, 26 Manchester Road, Thurlstone, Sheffield, South Yorkshire S30 6QT, for much mallet-related hilarity!

New fan-fiction line (Dr Who, Dredd, Watchmen), also with all-new fiction and room for more! In A5 format, read-on-side to get more words for your money. 80p postal order payable to Birmingham Midshires for catalogue from: Queries, PO Box 17, Minehead, Somerset TA24 8UG.

Dead Fly Pie — it's quite good if you like that sort of thing. £1.50 only from Walrus Press, PO Box 4791. Please include an A4 SAE. Thank you for listening.

Multi-Verse 3, featuring articles on Marvel and DC superheroes and characters. Features an interview with Mark Waid. 44 pages, £3 including postage. Order from Steve Nottingham, 37 Maxwell Road, Beaconsfield, Buckinghamshire HP9 1RG.

Blinkers Off — the new zine for people with their eyes and mind open. First issue out now. Special cut TV issue: Lost in Space, Blake's 7, Dr Who, Sgt. Bilko and more. Only £1.50 inc p&p from Paul Arthur, 31 Music House Lane, Norwich, Norfolk NR1 1QL.

Announcing the final release of The Pulp — possibly the best small press anthology ever (or possibly not). Decide for yourself and buy a copy. 34 pages, £1.85 (inc p&p). Send cheques/postal orders (payable to Simon Roberts)/death threats, etc to: Strangled Cat Comics, 5 Oriol Road, Sheffield S10 3TF.

Oi you! Can you draw superheroes? Yes? Good — it'll be worth your while to contact Steven Johnson, Block A, Flat 11, Chancellor's Hall, 65 Rottenrow East, Glasgow G4 0NG. Tel: 0141 552 6851.

To all my panting readers who are dying to get their hands on Rooney Tunes 1 — Terry Merrifield now has all the material, and I'm trying to find out whether he is dead or alive — have patience, all you rogues and vagabonds. Show no fear, Del is here.

Due to popularity, The Review Sheet has broken free from Vicious fanzine and become its own entity. TRS is 4 A5 pages of reviews of small press comics and fanzines, updated monthly. For a window of the SP send SAE to Peter Ashton, 39 Wheatsheaf Road, Birmingham B16 0RZ.

Galumph 16 out now — 40 pages of comic strip. Roostfyr, Gypsy Summer, the rather lewd L'Escholle Des Filles plus loads more. Mature readers only. £2.50 from Hedgehog & Wolf Pictures, 9 Grosvenor Place, Jesmond, Newcastle-Upon-Tyne NE2 2RB.

Get up! Stand up! The small press is the wave of the future, so let's make it happen! Small press authors who believe in their work can get a crack at the London market (twenty-odd stores including the country's largest). One of us is going to be the next big thing, and it could be you! Please contact: Fat Man Small Press Distribution Fabio P. Barbieri, 33 Brewster Road, Leyton, London E10 6RG. Telephone: 0181 539 7842.

Is your life empty and hollow? Really? Well mine isn't and people all over are having an ace time! Why? That's easy, they're reading Fun Comics! Issue 2 is out now so treat yourself and find out why my mum thinks I'm dead talented. Fun Comics 2 available from: Paul Davies, 9 Corsecombe Close, Ruddshill, Ferryhill, Co. Durham DL17 8DB, for 75p.

Comic Book Retail Agreement

CoBRA

Mail Order Protection Scheme

With the increasing audience for buying comics by post, reputable organisations risk suffering because of any unsatisfactory mail order transaction new readers of this magazine may have had elsewhere.

To reassure readers, Comics International has instigated a Mail Order Code of Practice, with participating businesses displaying the above logo in their advertisements, lists and catalogues.

CoBRA Mail Order Protection Scheme Code of Practice

Advertisers:

i Advertisers will state in print their standard despatch period for published goods, which will be within 28 days of receipt of payment.

ii In the event of items having sold out, customers will be offered a full cash refund for these goods.

iii In the event that goods are received by purchaser in unsatisfactory condition due to bad grading or poor wrapping, vendor agrees to provide acceptable replacement copies or full refund including the return postage costs incurred by purchaser.

iv Where required, an independent panel will judge whether goods in question are below advertised standards of grading.

v Where a PO Box address and trading name (other than limited company or PLC) is used by advertiser, the true name or business name (as appropriate) of the advertiser together with full address and telephone number must be submitted to Comics International with advertising copy, or the advertisement will not be accepted.

vi Vendor vouches that all goods detailed in advertisements, lists and catalogues which carry the CoBRA MOPS seal are graded as accurately as possible and no defect is intentionally overlooked.

vii Any mail order organisation subsequently failing, under investigation, to abide by this code understands upon joining that its name will be published as no longer connected with the CoBRA Mail Order Code of Practice scheme.

CUSTOMERS:

i In the event that goods ordered and paid for are not received within the advertiser's published fulfilment period, customer will notify advertiser in writing that goods have not been received and that unless a satisfactory response in writing is forthcoming, they will pursue their claim through CoBRA within 7 days.

ii It is recommended that mail order buyers should always retain dated copies of all correspondence and payment records, in the event of any query, and that customers contacting the CoBRA MOPS (Mail Order Protection Scheme) send additional copies of any relevant correspondence with their letters.

iii Customers are reminded that a standard of 28 days fulfilment is the accepted norm to allow for any outside delays in the mail routing of customers letter, together with banking time for clearance of payment and/or delays in transit for goods supplied. Collectively, these factors can add 15 days to fulfilment time.

iv Customers are also reminded that many mail order businesses do not have sufficient staff to allow for fulfilment of orders during vacations or stock-purchasing visits overseas, but vendors should notify customers of such occasions.

v When paying for a list or catalogue, customers are reminded that a delay may occur when vendor is either preparing a new list or catalogue, or when current one is considered too dated to be of benefit to would-be purchaser. Vendor guarantees that new list or catalogue will be sent upon completion, which will be within 2 months of advertisement being published.

vi CoBRA cannot adjudicate over well protected goods damaged by postal authorities, but a claim can be made by both vendor and purchaser against the assigned carrier.

Mail Order Retailers: If you agree to abide by the above conditions and wish to add a CoBRA MOPS symbol to your advertisements and catalogues, please submit your trading name and address with full name, personal address and telephone number of your business's proprietor with a first year annual subscription fee of £5.00 to cover administration costs (made payable to Comics International, CoBRA account) to:
